GEN. MITCHELL, who really knows about flying, lunching in New York yesterday with Mr. Gilbert Hodge, from Hodge, Cal., remarked:

"I don't buy much, but I have got some General Motors, and, what's more, I have EVERY SHARE I EVER BOUGHT. I can't see any limit to that."

THERE is a limit to everything, but Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., head of the General Motors, apparently doesn't see any limit.

He has just purchased for General Motors the Opel automobile works, biggest concern in Germany, producing more than half the German cars in Germany.

Heaven knows what that concern will produce after General Motors gets hold of it.

THE German government, it is said, objects to the sale of one of its largest industrial institutions to America.

German people and German workmen will not object. They'll learn about mass production, constant improvement of the product and good wages.

Great American concerns starting branches in Europe render service to industry and prosperity in this country and also to the countries in which they establish themselves.

MR. SLOAN, leaving for Europe last time, seems to have had a good appetite. In addition to buying the great German concern, he is said to be buying the Fiat Company, biggest automobile concern in Italy.

ON Thursday Wall Street felt peevish. The day's sales actually fell below FIVE MILLION SHARES.

But yesterday made up for it, and good old Wall Street went completely out of her head.

IN THE morning stocks 50,000 shares to the minute were sold, the ticker was 1,000,000 shares behind the brokers, who looked forward to an 8,000,000-share day. They did not get it. But it will come, and 10,0000,000-share day, too. This young country is growing.

No wonder brokers' seats are worth half a million that many men of the exchange bought for $10,000.

All the more reason for not gambling.

HENRY ELEXIE, colored man from the Barbados, able seaman on the lost Vestris, asked about the wreck, tells you that he lost his underwear, worth "$1.60, and all my books." "All my books" were the Bible and the "Beautitudes of the Bible." And Mr. Elexie says: "And I thought a lot of them."

INCIDENTALLY, Elexie swam to a drifting lifeboat, rowed it away from the maelstrom caused by the sinking ship, and picked up 11 floating passengers and crew, dragged them into the boat and saved them.

NATHAN STRAUS suggests that somebody ought to raise about $20,000 for Mr. Elexie to buy him new books and new underwear, and a vacation.

MISS REBECCA WEST, forceful young British person who writes well, pities American women. Their lives are tragic, says she. Many of them live parked high up in skyscrapers, "where they can't even keep a dog."

It's sad not to keep a dog in a skyscraper. But Miss West will know when she gets married that a baby or even a husband is a good substitute for a dog.

A NEW YORK murder trial gives a glimpse of American home life.

Miss Romayne Phillips, 24, tells how "Linky" Mitchell, gangster by profession, visited her on the night he was murdered.

HE BROUGHT two colored children that sang and danced while he played the ukulele. She dismissed them because he was intoxicated.

Before midnight he returned "with another lady and gentleman" and the four visited several speakeasies.

AT FOUR in the morning they returned to her home, woke up her mother, who got dressed, and "started out to visit more places of entertainment."

A little later Linky was murdered. The men who killed him told Miss Romayne to run home.

New York under prohibition has at least 25,000 speakeasies, and more shootings than that or any other city ever had before.

IN WALL STREET, as in Monte Carlo, they tell interesting stories of "big winnings." A clerk, convinced that he was made for bigger things, left his job, "Got in right" on Montgomery-Ward stock, and in a few months made a million dollars. Now he "retires" to get married.

BUT HE WILL BE BACK, and what he took out of that old street will go back there.

One thing that doesn't pay is gambling. And if there is one thing that you can't beat, it is anything that involves gambling, pure and simple.

Invest, but buy wisely what you know you can ultimately pay for, and then HANG ON.

Judge W. W. Porter Dies in Valley Forge

VALLEY FORGE, Pa., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Former Judge William W. Porter, one of the first judges of the Superior Court, died yesterday at his home here. He was 72. For more than 50 years an active member of the bar, Judge Porter came from a line of ancestors, all of whom were distinguished in the public life of Pennsylvania or the nation.

SHIP PROBE "FIX" CHARGED

EIGHT HELD AS BOY COLLAPSES AND DIES DURING BOOZE ORGY

Death rode with a half dozen Lawrenceville boys and girls in an early morning orgy. When the party stopped for breakfast this morning, William Beyers, 21, of 519 Kendall street, embraced pretty Mary Nicholas, 18, of 3452 Denny street, and collapsed. He was dead a short time later in Allegheny General Hospital. Eight were arrested and turned over to the coroner by police. Alcoholism caused Beyers' death an autopsy revealed.

Mary Nichols and Anna Leff, 19, also of the Denny street address, were returning from a Lawrenceville theater last night when they met Beyers, John Lucas, 23, of 891 Fifty-fourth street; Mike Lidzus, 19, of 819 Fifty-fourth street, and Gus Andrews, 34, of 3625 Butler street, the latter the alleged proprietor of a saloon.

The girls, according to their story, were invited for a ride. They said the men were drinking.

Early this morning the party stopped at the American Restaurant, 1200 Penn avenue, for breakfast. While waiting for the meal to be served, Beyers, in a gay spirit, embraced Mary Nichols and then collapsed.

Unable to arouse him at the conclusion of their meal Beyers' companions took him to Allegheny General Hospital, where he died a short time later.

When police were notified of Beyers' death they began rounding up the party. Emanuel Long, proprietor of the American restaurant, was arrested and his place searched, but the police failed to find any liquor. At 3625 Butler street they arrested the two girls and three men who had accompanied Beyers on the ride and also took into custody Frank Pieris, 40, and Stanley Buzes, 33. Police said Beyers' companions had returned to the Butler street address to continue the party.

ROBBERS HOLD UP WOOD STREET STORE

Two methodical, well-armed young men were the first patrons of the Parisian Bootery, 520 Wood street, when it opened for business today. They bought nothing, but took away $215, after locking the clerks and manager securely in an ante room.

Mildred Silverman, a clerk, greeted a man about 25, the day's first customer, with a smile.

"Some hosiery for the wife," he said.

A second man entered. O. P. Curry, another clerk, hastened to ascertain his needs.

"In the back room for yours," was the reply, reinforced by a pistol.

Curry didn't argue, but went to the back room. So did Miss Silverman, hosiery sales forgotten. In the rear room, the robbers found Roger Shaver, store manager, counting yesterday's receipts. They took the receipts, amounting to about $200.

At that point David Levine, a clerk, came into the room slightly out of breath. He was late for work. He lost more breath when he stared into the muzzle of a pistol.

Then the bandits searched the clerks and manager, getting an additional $15, and herded them into a washroom. They wedged a chair under the doorknob and left. When Shaver and his clerks broke the door open 20 minutes later there was nothing to do but report the robbery to police and go ahead with business.

OPEN WELFARE FUND HOUSE DRIVE SUNDAY

Closing the first week of their campaign with about half their fund in hand, workers for the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh are now concentrating their efforts toward raising the balance—$564,992—before next Friday. Sunday at 2 p. m. the county-wide house-to-house canvass will begin with thousands of workers in the field.

Augustus K. Oliver, president of the Welfare Fund and chairman of the campaign, again pointed out that in the house-to-house canvass as well as in the industrial and trade group solicitation which has been going on, the contributors have the privilege of giving to the fund as a whole or allocating their gifts in whole or in part to the various organizations in the Welfare Fund. Twenty-five social service agencies are being financed for 1929 under this co-operative plan.

Since the printing of the contribution cards three organizations have joined the fund and donations given especially to these must be written on the back of the card. The new agencies in the list are: Legal Aid Society, the Mothers' Pension

Justice Mill Grist In Rum Ring Trial

Arnold Thornburg, admittedly one of the collectors for the North Side booze ring, testified that one of the expenses of his racket was in "going into the places and buying 'a round' for the boys." Thornburg also explained how prices for the various kinds of liquor was determined. Eighty-five dollars per case was "supposed to be good stuff."

"Why 'supposed to be'?" asked Prosecutor Smith.

"Well, they say there is no such thing," Thornburg answered.

If the stuff was cut, its price was reduced, Thornburg revealed, the reduction depending upon the strength of the cut—a process that usually means diluting good whisky with water.

Smith.

The candid bootlegger, Mike Yanos, testified that he didn't sell good stuff.

Those government witnesses who are former bootleggers testified that they sold moonshine at the same prices: twenty-five cents for a "shot;" 50 cents a half-pint and $1 a pint.

George Saborychiak, Spruce street merchant, told of buying one gallon each week, but not to sell. George testified he drank his share, and often quite a few of the boys would drop in for a hand or two of rum

FIND TOTS HOME ALONE

JOHN WILLIAM

Humane Society agents today search for Mr. and Mrs. William Borres 1200 Arch street, North Side, alleged to have abandoned their two children, William, 3, a deaf mute, and John, 19 months. The children are being cared for in the Juvenile Detention Home, Forbes street. North Side police found the children alone in their home. Here the tots clamber on top of a Humane Society desk.

MARKET'S RECORDS FALL

By FRANK CHARLTON,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Despite apprehensive warnings of bankers and conservative brokers, the bullish offensive on the stock market roared onward at the clang of the stock exchange gong at 10 o'clock this morning, and in the first 15 minutes 531,000 shares were traded in.

The spectators' gallery of the stock exchange was jammed. Men and women looked down upon a scene of wild turbulence as brokers fought and scrambled to execute buying and selling orders.

Speculators and amateur traders sold some stocks for quick profits, but the most of the list continued its upward surge.

Radio common advanced 2½ points, selling at 300 for the first time in history and adding to the fortunes of far-seeing investors who bought when it was on sale at far less than half that figure, American Telephone and Telegraph, which controls the nation's telephone lines, soared 4½ points.

Before the opening of the market today it was estimated that the value of securities has been increased by approximately $1,250,000,000 by the wave of furious buying which has deluged both the New

Eye Affliction Puts Mrs. Ross In Hospital

DETROIT, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Mrs. Nellie T. Ross, former governor of Wyoming, is undergoing treatment in a hospital here, it was learned today. Hospital authorities and her physician would not comment on the nature of her ailment, but a letter from Mrs. Ross to friends in Oshkosh, Wis., where she was scheduled to speak last night, said she was suffering from an eye affliction.

Vestris Survivor on Way to Brownsville

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 17.—Gaeppano Abbadini, of Philadelphia, passenger on the ill-fated liner Vestris, has wired his sister here, Mrs. Candido Paffoni, that he was rescued and would come here immediately.

Abbadini and Vincento Murri, who drowned, were en route to Buenos Aires, where Abbadini was to have married Murri's sister, a woman he never had seen.

Gang's Bullets Kill Brooklyn Bootlegger

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(INS.)—Police said today that Vito Manzello, 50, who was shot seven times and fatally wounded last night in Brooklyn, was a bootlegger.

Manzello's head was nearly severed by the bullets, which evidently had been fired from both a revolver and a shotgun. The slayers escaped.

RADIO MEN 'FORGET' IN QUIZ

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(INS.)—Convinced that "persons unknown" are attempting to obstruct his investigation into the sinking of the liner Vestris off the Virginia coast Monday, United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle was prepared to bring all the guns of the law to bear upon witnesses today at the resumption of the hearing before United States Commissioner Francis O'Neill.

Incensed by the assertion of two of the liner's radio operators, who testified yesterday that they "did not remember" what messages were sent to or from the owners of the Vestris before the S. O. S. was flashed, Tuttle declared he intended to wring the complete truth from the lips of every witness.

He said that if there was "further indication of tampering with witnesses," he would launch an investigation of the activities of all the witnesses since they came into port.

CHIEF OFFICER CALLED

"Today the efforts of the captain, officers and crew to save the 326 souls aboard—efforts which failed to prevent the loss of 111 lives including that of the captain—were to be related by the ship's officers.

Those scheduled to take the stand included Frank W. Johnson, chief officer; J. O. Bolger, second officer, and H. L. Welland, third officer. They were expected to deny charges made by some of the survivors that attempts made to launch the lifeboats were badly mismanaged; that the disaster was "plain murder."

SECOND PROBE UNDER WAY

Meanwhile, Secretary Whiting of the Commerce Department has promised a complete investigation of all aspects of the inspection of the steamship before she left New York. He announced late yesterday that Assistant Secretary Walter F. Brown and E. F. Morgan, solicitor of the department, had been sent to New York to take part in the inquiry being conducted there and that D. N. Hoover, supervising inspector general of the steamboat inspection service also had been sent there, to take charge of the investigation. Under instructions from Secretary Whiting, Hoover was recalled from an official trip in the west.

The Commerce department inquiry, while entirely separate, will co-operate, Whiting said, with the Tuttle probe in every possible manner.

Tuttle was investigating a report that arms and ammunition, possibly intended for use in a South American revolutionary outbreak, was slipped secretly aboard the Vestris just before she sailed from New York. According to the report, the contraband was brought aboard by a few members of the "black gang," without the knowledge of the ship's owners.

The angle in the story which aroused Tuttle's attention was a report that the contraband may have been shipped aboard through the coal bunker door, which is alleged to have been left open, allowing water to flood the ship's interior.

DEAD MAN USED AS ALIBI

Charles Verchere and James MacDonald, the wireless operators whose reticence on the stand yesterday aroused Tuttle's ire, may be recalled for further questioning today. They declared that practically all of the messages sent to and from the line's offices had been handled by "Sparks" O'Loughlin, the heroic operator who went down with the ship.

The point which Tuttle emphasized again and again was the delay in summoning aid. MacDonald admitted that a message, "We may need aid," had been sent from the Vestris on Monday 20 minutes before the SOS was flashed, but later declared he did not recall whether this happened.

Arthur J. Costigan, of the Radio Marine Corporation, is expected to throw light on the situation when he completes a search for messages which passed between the ship and the offices of the line. Costigan, the last witness to take the stand yesterday, may have his report ready today.

TECH AND IRISH EVEN BET; PITT UNDERDOG

Pittsburgh's football warriors are scattered all over the country today. Carnegie Tech's clan is out at South Bend, Ind., patiently awaiting this afternoon's clash with Notre Dame, in which Tech's fate as possible national champion will be decided. Pitt is at Lincoln, Neb., facing a Nebraska Cornhusker eleven that has an undefeated slate and a healthy yearning to avenge a defeat at the hands of Pitt here last year.

Duquesne is the only local attraction, facing Thiel in the Pitt Stadium this afternoon.

Rain, with muddy, slippery fields, in both South Bend and Lincoln, is making the outlook gloomy for Pitt and Tech. Despite the bad weather the football fields in both cities are expected to be jammed by spectators.

TECH IRISH EVEN

Carnegie Tech and Notre Dame are well matched for their fight today. The betting is strictly even, so closely are they regarded. And Notre Dame has not been beaten on its home gridiron in 23 long years!

The contest marks the sixth meeting between the rivals and Tech has made a remarkable showing in all the others, reaching its peak two years ago in setting down an Irish eleven here that was headed for the national championship. The

SIX CHUMS QUIZZED IN DEATH OF BOY, 13

The playmates of Michael Rabish were called in for questioning today by state police and county detectives who wanted to know whether 13-year-old Michael had been deliberately or accidentally shot before he was dragged into a clump of bushes on Morgan Hill, near Bridgeville, where another boy found his body last night.

The troopers took six boys into custody, and they confiscated a .22 caliber rifle, without a stock or trigger. Corporal Marion Lott said he believed the gun could have been fired, despite the absence of a trigger, and he believed it had been fired recently, probably in target practice.

SIX BOYS QUESTIONED

The boys questioned were Frank Paulner, 15; Joseph Tomikel, 13; John Aponas, 14; George Simpson, 13; Michael Chebatoris, 15, and Anthony Simpson, 11, a brother of George Simpson. They were huddled in the office of Justice of the Peace James T. Koch, to help solve

EVERYBODY'S BUYING STOCKS! BROKERS' VIEW OF BOOM

PGH. DEALERS EXPLAIN UPSWING

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

"Everyone and his brother are buying stocks," thus one of Pittsburgh's leading brokers summarized the past week of unprecedented activity on the New York Exchange, in which the high record of sales for all time was twice broken.

Skyrocketing prices have attracted small accounts in great numbers, although the larger traders are still heavily in the market.

"Many women and men who own small amounts of bonds and high grade investment stocks have been coming to us and asking if they should switch their holdings to the more active stocks of speculative nature," said one house. "Of course, we advise against making any switches at the levels prevailing at present."

Brokers have been attempting to restrict overspeculation by keeping margin requirements as stringent as possible. The opinion is general among the houses that traders who should be buying odd lots have been dealing in hundreds of shares and those who can afford to be hundred-share traders have been handling thousands.

VIEWS CONFLICT

One broker stated that there was very little buying of stocks outright, while others said that a tremendous volume of odd lot buying has come from people with moderate savings who are buying stocks for investment purposes and are putting them away.

Thousands of orders for one to ten shares are being received through banks. Although some of these stocks may be left with the banks as security for loans it is likely that most of them represent cash down transactions. This may account for the comparatively small increase in loans to brokers.

"Foreign laborers, people you never would think would know what a stock is, are now taking their savings out of the banks and putting them in stocks," said a partner in a leading wire house.

Most of the transactions are on the long side. That is, people are buying blocks and are only selling to take profits. The only short interest in the market is professional. This may indicate that when the market reaches an overdeveloped condition the crash will be sudden since there will be little short covering to support a declining market as margins are exhausted.

"I expect this market to continue," said one broker. "We will have a bull market over Christmas."

Others confessed that they had no idea how long the Hoover prosperity market would run.

Although the magnet of sudden wealth has drawn many into speculation who never traded in stocks before, the great majority of people in the market now have been speculating for months.

In every customers' room, from everyone comes the remark, "It's a great market, isn't it? But how long will it last?"

houses and the chain stores have proved high steppers.

RADIO SOARS

Radio Corporation, whose profits are growing with the expansion of foreign business and which may get a big slice of profitable business from Soviet Russia in the near future, leaped 22½ points on Friday on the turnover of 49,500 shares. General Electric, which will do an enormous business both at home and abroad next year, jumped four points.

Wright Aeronautical, which manufactured the motors used by Lindbergh, Byrd, Chamberlin and other noted fliers, is right in the vanguard. It rose 18 points yesterday. Western Union, which had been more or less dormant until the boom market tidal wave hit it, rose 10 points yesterday, and United States Steel, the old standby for many years and long a leader of all stock market movements, climbed 3¼ points on a turnover of 148,600 shares.

In the belief that the next national administration will be sympathetic towards expansion of public utilities and in view of the increasing purchases of copper at home and abroad with the consequent increase in the metal's price, the copper stocks have taken a prominent role in the advance. Anaconda climbed 6¾ on Friday and Andes Copper, one of the "children" of the Anaconda family, advanced 2¾.

U. S. S. Wyoming, docking at Hampton Roads, Va., yesterday, brought back the last who will have been saved in the sinking of the S. S. Vestris. Here, women among the nine survivors brought by the Wyoming leave the ship. Note how one is dressed in clothes provided by sailors on the vessel.

LOTTERY OPERATORS DUE TO FACE JURY MONDAY

Three alleged heads of a widespread lottery will face the grand jury Monday when it resumes its investigation into the cash-and-run system alleged to be operated between Pittsburgh police and Pittsburgh racketeers.

From two under arrest the number jumped one today when Philadelphia police arrested James A. Murray. A county detective with a bench warrant was sent at once to Philadelphia to get Murray.

The district attorney also expects to have more bank officials on hand Monday to explain the bank accounts of several persons implicated in the operation of the lotteries.

After they had testified before the jury yesterday, Mrs. Mary E. Shafer, 95 Castle Shannon road, and Harry B. Relker, of Popular Grove terrace, Carrick, were arrested on charges of conspiracy to conduct a lottery. They posted $5,000 each. They will be arraigned before Judge James B. Drew Monday morning.

Murray, Relker and Mrs. Shafer were said to conduct the Louisiana State Lottery, Inc., which advertised to pay prizes as high as $100,000 monthly. The highest prize ever paid was $1,000, Gardiner said, this being only on one occasion.

INVITATION TO JUDGE REFUSED—AT $50—COST

Magistrate A. D. Brandon, who probably receives more invitations than any other city magistrate, today was invited to jump out of the window in his Morals Court. Owing to pressure of business and a shrewd foresight, Brandon refused.

The invitation was proferred by Charles Simon, 30, of 721 Sandusky street, a defendant.

"Is it true," Brandon asked, "that you were cursing and raising a rumpus in your rooming house last night?"

"Go jump out of the window," Charles suggested.

Brandon pondered. The window on the second floor of the new Central Police Station building was 50 feet above the street. A formidable trestle of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad would interrupt the jump. Were any fast trains due? Would he escape with bruises? Or would he suffer lacerations?

With an alertness typical of Morals Court magistrates, Brandon decided.

"I am sorry," he said, "to refuse your kind invitation, but to show my appreciation I shall fine you $50."

SIX QUIZZED IN BOY'S DEATH

if they could, the mystery of their playmate's death.

The body of the slain boy was found in a clump of bushes near a spring, about a quarter of a mile from his home, last night. He had been missing since Thursday afternoon. George Simpson stumbled over the body when he went to the spring for water. He told his mother and she told Bridgeville police.

At the morgue an autopsy showed that a .32 caliber bullet had passed through the boy's brain. The face and scalp were bruised and lacerated, and the clothing was torn. This led investigators to conclude that the body had been dragged for some distance through underbrush, probably by the feet.

HELD TARGET PRACTICE

Corp. Mott learned that the group of boys Michael played with had engaged in target practice in a ravine a few hundred yards from the spot where the body was found. As he gathered up Michael's playmates he looked for a gun, and at the Paulner home he found the broken rifle hidden under hay in a barn.

It was the theory of Corp. Mott and of County Detective Robert McMillen that Michael had been accidentally shot during target practice, and that the boys had hidden the body because they were afraid to tell what had happened to Michael.

Aged Washington Widow Dies in Ohio

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 17.—Mrs. Martha Duvall, 83, widow of James M. Duvall, of East Pike Run township, of Atwater, O. The body will be brought back to this county and funeral services held at the Howe Church, near California, today.

STOCK MARKET RECORDS FALL

York Stock Exchange and the curb market since the election.

NEW RECORDS SET

New records for heavy dealings have been established on both the exchange and the curb, the sales on the former reaching the dizzy height of 6,641,250 yesterday and on the curb 2,151,800.

Brokers' commissions are roughly estimated at $200,000,000 during the first five trading days this week. These figures, of course, cannot be computed accurately owing to the wide variations of prices charged for execution of buying and selling orders.

Everybody is doing it. Staid citizens of California and Maine, who have looked askance at "stock gambling" are pouring in their orders along with the Wall street professionals who have long made their living by "guessing the market."

So profitable has the brokerage business become that $500,000 was bid for a stock exchange seat, which is $20,000 more than the price paid in the latest sale.

The market closes at noon on Saturday but in many broker offices clerks will work all day, all night and all day tomorrow catching up with the delayed bookkeeping.

OLD TRADERS ASTOUNDED

The transactions this week, up to 10 o'clock this morning, ran to nearly 28,000,000 shares—a new record. It was a figure that would have astounded the traders of 20 years ago, when 500,000 shares was an enormous day. The sales this week, day by day, were:

Monday—5,747,560.
Tuesday—5,404,260.
Wednesday—5,377,995.
Thursday—4,786,380.
Friday—6,641,250.
Total—27,955,445.

From January 1 up until today the transactions totaled 770,870,601 shares.

So furious has become the dealings that the total yesterday was as big as that of any two days in 1927.

The continual increase in the turnover bears out a prediction recently made by President E. H. H. Simmons in an exclusive interview with International News Service. He said he believed sales soon would average normally 7,000,000 a day. They are within the shadow of that figure right now.

Nearly all groups in the stock market are participating in the bull movement. Some of the little issues, whose companies are in poor shape, have not been touched, but the coppers, the big industrials, the leading railroads, the mail order

Who IS "Joe Green?"

"MR. GREEN'S" CARD!

When the county grand jury, investigating graft, indicted 244 persons two weeks ago, one of the indicted was a Mr. Joseph Green. The current federal trial of 46 North Siders on conspiracy charges developed at least one fact: that Mr. Joseph Green was a phantom; that the name was assumed, so the government charges, by the booze peddlers of the North Side; that police told the shopkeepers to do business with Joe Green—or else; that Joe Green's calling card was distributed in advance by certain police. He'll never be arraigned, the federal attaches could assure the county prosecutors.

Against	402,657

These totals include the total vote of Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton and the practically complete vote of every county but Northampton, which gave a majority against the measure. Of the missing districts, 216 are in Allegheny county.

FARM FEE RAPPED BY COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Widespread adoption of the co-operative principle by the agricultural industry is advocated by President Coolidge as the most effective means of solving the farmer's marketing problems.

Speaking last night before the annual convention of the National Grange, the Chief Executive defined the co-operative system as a "movement to unify all agencies of production, distribution and consumption, so that they can function as a co-ordinated whole which will sell at the right place and at the right time." To help in the advancement of the movement, the President said that the government might well provide an administrative board equipped with sufficient funds to demonstrate the soundness of the principle in its experimental stage.

REVIEWS DEVELOPMENT

In addition, Mr. Coolidge reviewed the development of American agriculture, citing two great periods of depression, in the wake of the Civil War and the World War, detailed the steps that the government has taken to relieve the latter, and again expressed his opposition to any attempt at governmental fixing of farm produce prices or the establishment of a governmental subsidy.

Declaring that the farmer apparently had become well schooled in the art of production, President Coolidge asserted that the lesson of marketing had not been so well learned.

"One of the greatest handicaps of agriculture is overproduction," he said. "The world is hungry to consume all that the farmer ever raises. His difficulty arises from attempting to sell at the wrong time or the wrong place. The most successful method of meeting this difficulty has been through co-operative associations. They have enabled agriculture in a large way to take better advantage of all agencies of distribution, the bankers, the carriers, the commission merchants, the packers and the millers."

Mr. Coolidge said that co-operative marketing sometimes had failed through lack of management, but added that it was "sound in theory and when conducted in a business-like way offers the most promising solution" for the farmers' marketing problems.

CHIMES THAT SQUIRREL HILL HEARS

Chimes that ring out daily on Squirrel Hill come from these huge bells atop the new St. Philomena's Church and school, Beechwood boulevard. Here is the Rev. Father William B. Kenna, pastor, looking over the electric controls which operate the chimes from the ground floor.

TWO FLOORS ADDED TO SCHOOL

Two stories recently were added to the school, including six class rooms, gymnasium and auditorium. Total cost of the structure now approximates half a milion dollars. The new addition cost $150,000 and will be formally opened November 26.

ST. PHILOMENA'S SCHOOL TO OPEN ADDITION NOV. 26

Formal opening of the new $150,000 addition to St. Philomena's Roman Catholic school will take place November 26 at a reception and dance to be given by the newly-organized men's club of St. Philomena's Church. The reception will be in the form of an "Old Home Week" celebration, according to the Rev. Father William B. Kenna, pastor, who announced that the men's club was arranging card parties and a program of dancing for the occasion.

The new addition consists of two floors above the original school building and includes six modern class rooms, a large gymnasium and a spacious auditorium running the entire length of the top floor. A new set of electrically-operated chimes has been set up on the roof.

The men's club was organized last Wednesday night at a meeting presided over by Father Kenna. Plans for equipping a clubroom in the new school building were discussed and officers were elected. P. F. Casey was named chairman, Dr. Thomas A. Hogan, treasurer, and Earl Tovey was named secretary.

Coal Association Elects Pgh. Man

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—E. C. Mahan, of Nashville, Tenn., was re-elected president of the National Coal Association at the conclusion of the organization's eleventh annual convention here yesterday. Among other officers was T. S. Love, of Pittsburgh. A resolution reaffirming its opposition to any legislation tending to single out the coal industry for regulatory action was adopted.

HOW GIRLS MUST DRESS FOR SCHOOL

Father Kenna has instituted regulations of dress among girl pupils. The costume consists of blue serge pleated skirt, pongee blouse and red tie. Here is Rita Owens, showing her girl friend, Virginia Kelly, how her tie should be, while Nita Lamb (left), Lucille McVey, and Edith Carr (right) look on.

HEALING PITTSBURGH'S ILL!

Over Latest Station, WMBJ

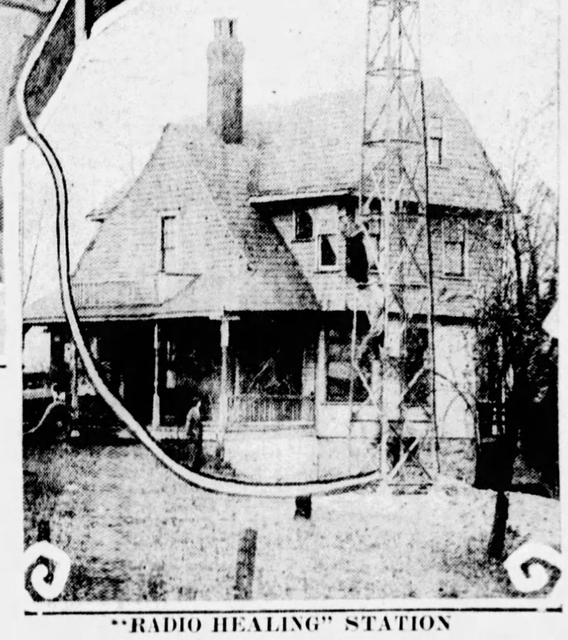
CURES BY FAITH OVER RADIO

Faith cures are no longer effected exclusively at the Glory Barn of the Rev. John W. Sproul, West Carson street. His "Gospel of Healing" is now available on ether waves since he established his own broadcasting station on Frankstown road, about one mile from Verona car line.



"RADIO HEALING" STATION

This is WMBJ, the Glory Barn "faith healing" radio broadcasting station. It is equipped with a crystal control transmitter, has a wave length of 200 meters and 1,500 kilocycles. Two 85-foot steel towers support the antennas.

MAN CURED OVER RADIO

Miraculous cures are claimed by Mr. Sproul to have been effected by his preaching over the radio. Hundreds of sufferers, he says, have written him, declaring they have been healed of this and that ailment by listening in on WMBJ. A typical case is that of John H. Miller, superintendent of Pittsburgh and Lake Erie powerhouse, who says he was cured in 20 minutes from an ailment with which he had been afflicted since he was two years old.

JOHN H. MILLER

Here is Miller's own account of how he was cured: "When two years old I swallowed a quantity of lye. Five strictures formed from my stomach to my throat, making it impossible for me to swallow even water for 56 years. Every bite of food had to be forced down into my stomach. Then one day I heard Rev. Sproul tell over the radio how he was cured. I believed and today, praise the Lord, I can now eat and swallow anything the same as any normal person."

VESTRIS EYE-WITNESSES ARRIVE IN PITTSBURGH

Two German immigrant girls, Fraulein Gertrude and Elizabeth Uffermann, 17 and 21, respectively, arrived in Pittsburgh yesterday with graphic accounts of the rescue of passengers and crew of the shipwrecked Lamport & Holt liner Vestris by the North German Lloyd liner Berlin, on which they came to this country as passengers. The girls are making their home with an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Hildebrand, of 4 Emma street, Mount Troy. A brother and sister of theirs are also living in Pittsburgh.

It was at their relatives' home where a Sun-Telegraph reporter found them and listened to their graphic recital, in German, of the Berlin's rescue efforts. The elder girl did most of the talking, while her younger sister supplemented some of her accounts.

"HEAVY ROLLING SEA"

"It was at 11 o'clock Monday morning when we heard that our ship had picked up the Vestris' distress signals," Gertrude began. "The vessel immediately altered its course and steamed at top speed toward the Vestris. Shortly before midnight we could see the lights from ships all around us. We knew we were nearing the disaster scene. All passengers were up on deck, scanning the horizon for a sight of the foundering ship and lifeboats. At midnight we saw some 20 ships all around us. Everyone thought we were but a short distance from the Vestris. Our ship was rolling and pitching in a heavy sea. Dark clouds hung on the skies and impaired our vision. We heard that our radio operator could learn absolutely nothing from other ships as to the position of the Vestris, nor could we see any flares from lifeboats or rafts. The Berlin kept on cruising for hours over a wide area. The sea was too heavy to make much progress.

SIGHT FIRST SURVIVOR

"It was not until 7 o'clock Tuesday morning that we espied what we believed to be a flare from a lifeboat. We were right, for, suddenly the ship turned around and was heading straight for the point where we had seen the flash. A few minutes later we could plainly see the outlines of a lifeboat and the heads of the men protruding from it. Our ship slackened her speed as the lifeboat came nearer and nearer. Several times we lost sight of the craft as it disappeared behind a high wave. Passengers gasped at this sight. We thought the men in the boat had been swallowed by the wave.

"Most of us thought the shipwrecks could never be brought aboard our vessel, so high were the waves and so hazardous appeared to us the task of their rescue. Breathlessly we watched the lifeboat battle against the rollers in its attempt to reach the side of the Berlin. Although only a distance of 200 feet separated us from the craft, more than an hour elapsed before it was alongside the Berlin, so heavy was the sea. We called out to the men in the lifeboat to hold out and to have courage. Finally, at 8 o'clock the Berlin's lifeboat ropes were lowered and the small craft was slowly raised atop the deck.

COLLAPSE AS RESCUED

"In it were 13 Negroes and one white man. Most of them collapsed as they were lifted out of the boat. The majority of them were clad in trousers and shirts only. They were given a drink of brandy, dry clothing and then put to bed for three hours, after which they were fed. The Berlin's passengers in the meantime had taken up a collection for them. When the money was offered them, one Negro refused to accept his share. He said he had $1,200 in his money belt.

While stewards and others of the Berlin's crew made the rescued men comfortable, the ship continued its search for other lifeboats and crafts. As the crew of the Berlin hauled the lifeboat aboard, we could see the United States cruiser Wyoming and a French boat attempting to pick up other lifeboats from the Vestris. The former rescued men and women from two boats and the latter one boat.

"At 11 o'clock we espied the form of a man clinging to a lifebelt. He was using a wooden board as a rudder and after a valiant battle against the waves he succeeded in coming close to the side of our ship. Five or six lifebelts had been flung overboard before he was able to catch the one by which he was finally hoisted aboard. He collapsed as he was released from the belt. He said he had been in the water 22 hours and that he had been able to see our ship and others practically all night, whereas we had not glimpsed him all that time. He told us he had never given up hope of being rescued and even slept for a time during the night. His greatest consolation was that he had not lost his money. He recovered $500 from underneath his cap. It was so wet that a cook had to dry it in the ship's kitchen.

SIGHT DEAD

"At about noon when the Berlin was still combing the sea for other lifeboats and shipwrecked passengers floating around on lifebelts, we saw two apparently dead bodies being washed hither and thither by the waves. One was the body of a woman and the other that of a child. They were not picked up. Shortly after 1 o'clock, when the crew of the Berlin could find no other lifeboats or individual shipwrecked passengers, our ship turned around and steamed towards New York.

"There was no question in our minds that we were very near the spot where the Vestris went down. Everywhere around our ship we could see huge patches of oil on the surface of the sea. Trunks, boards, masts, cases and a chaotic mass of nondescript material was floating around over a wide area. It was a sight that made our heart's quiver with horror. We were thankful when we reached port safely. The last thing we did when we stepped down the gangplank was to give the heroic crew of the Berlin three lusty cheers. We never knew what bravery was until we saw how they risked their lives in rescuing the shipwrecked of the Vestris."

PITTSBURGHERS MEET BLOCK

Paul Block, Pittsburgh newspaper publisher was honored yesterday at a luncheon and reception tendered him in the William Penn hotel by 150 business men. Edgar J. Kaufmann, who presided at the luncheon, told of his long friendship with Block and then called upon James Francis Burke to introduce the publisher.

Burke lauded the publisher and touched upon the importance of a newspaper in everyday life.

MICHAEL RABISH

Six playmates of Michael Rabish, 13, Morgan Hill, South Fayette Township, were questioned by county detectives seeking to know who fired a bullet that killed Michael before his body was dragged into a clump of bushes where another boy found it. The sleuths believed it might have been done in target practice, accidentally.

"Special Guide" For Bootlegger Held as Sheik

Leonard Preston, 27, of Bluff street, wasn't, as the police charged, molesting girls as he stood at Fifth avenue and Gist street last night; he was merely waiting for a bootlegger.

Leonard explained it all to Magistrate Brandon in Morals Court today. This bootlegger—Leonard named him—paid Preston $2 each time he escorted him, as a sort of special guide, to various sections of the city.

The police had this to say about that: Leonard would travel in one car ahead of the bootlegger, and if Leonard saw or suspected prohibition agents eying them Leonard would run his car into somebody else's and in the confusion the bootlegger would escape.

Leonard was held for investigation.

Guild Organists to Worship in Trinity

The Western Pennsylvania Chapter of the American Guild of Organists will hold a public worship service in Trinity Cathedral Monday evening, November 26, at 8 o'clock. The Rt. Rev. Alexander Mann, bishop of Pittsburgh, will deliver the address. The warden of the Guild, Frank L. Sealy, of New York, will attend the service and play a processional march composed especially for the occasion. Alfred Hamer, organist and choirmaster, will play at the service and direct a choir of men and boys.

Sunday Services By Salvation Army

"Walking Uprightly" will be the subject of Adjutant W. G. Crouch's morning sermon in the Salvation Army headquarters, 425 Second avenue, tomorrow. In the evening, he will speak on "Halting." Major and Mrs. Herbert Smith are arranging the musical program for both services. Sergeant Monerief will be in charge of the Sunday School at 2:00 o'clock, with Adjutant Clifford Lockwood directing the Adult Bible Class. The topic of the Young People's Legion at 6:00 o'clock is "God Everywhere," and the public is cordially invited.

Woman Sick, Burns Herself to Death

LAUREL, Miss., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Despondency because of failing health, today was believed by Allen Boyd to have caused his wife to saturate her clothing with gasoline and fire herself with a match at their home here last night.

A coroner's jury investigated the tragedy and returned a verdict of suicide.

MAN CRUSHED BY AUTO DIES

Injuries suffered when he was crushed against a building by an automobile truck caused the death last night in Braddock General Hospital of James Wall, 63, of 623 Lila street, Braddock. The accident occurred yesterday afternoon in Wood way, Braddock. Wall was watching a towing automobile remove another machine. He stepped unnoticed to the rear of the truck and was crushed against the wall of a building.

Heavy Rain Forces 7 Mail Planes Down

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Rain throughout the middle west forced down seven Chicago-bound mail planes.

The planes from Bay City, Mich., Cleveland and Cincinnati were among the planes that were forced down.

OIL STRUCK AT CHARLEROI

CHARLEROI, Pa., Nov. 17.—For the first time in the history of the upper Monongahela Valley, oil was struck here in a well on the Van Voorhis heirs' farm, near Ellsworth. The well, 30-gallon capacity, was being drilled for gas by the Van Voorhis & Woodward Gas Company, of Charleroi. The strike was made in the Bayard sand after a small gas strike had been made in the Big Injun sands. The oil is being piped to temporary tanks. Old drillers visited the well and came away calling it a "freak."

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 17.—(INS)—Bit on the finger by a pet parrot on Wednesday, Robert Vanderwater, 54, is dead here of blood poisoning.

P. R. R. VICE PRESIDENTS BANQUET GUESTS HERE

A representative group of Pittsburgh citizens, numbering nearly 300, attended a complimentary dinner last night at the Duquesne Club to honor Edward T. Whiter and E. W. Smith, vice presidents of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The hosts were R. B. Mellon, H. C. McIldowney and A. L. Humphrey. Mr. Humphrey was toastmaster. He introduced an innovation in having Burt Mustin sing the introductions for each speaker.

The announced purpose of the affair was to present to Pittsburghers the honor guest, Mr. Whiter, in his new capacity as vice president with more important duties, chiefly the cultivation of public relations, and Mr. Smith, who adopted Pittsburgh as his home and who was cordially welcomed as a highly efficient vice president in charge of operations.

Numerous tributes were paid to the guests, to Pittsburgh and to the Pennsylvania Railroad as a most essential corollary in the progress of the Pittsburgh district by speakers.

"No other section of the country has such an interdependence as the Pittsburgh district and the Pennsylvania Railroad," declared Mr. Humphrey. "This district must prepare for the 50 per cent increase in efficiency by the railroad in the next 25 years, based on its annual increase of efficiency of 2 per cent.

KLINE URGES BOOSTING

Mayor Charles H. Kline described the hosts as the three greatest boosters of Pittsburgh and Pittsburgh as the greatest industrial city of the world, declaring that the city needs encouragement not only in its development of transportation but in its educational facilities.

He spoke of the passage of the Metropolitan bill, advancing Pittsburgh from the position of ninth city to fourth city in the country, and the future possibilities of river transportation as an aid to this district. He praised Paul Block, publisher of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, who briefly acknowledged an introduction subsequently, as a staunch supporter of a more progressive city.

The mayor said he would divulge some secret information. "The Pennsylvania Railroad before long will be electrified between Pittsburgh and Philadelphia," he said. He expressed appreciation of the co-operation of the railroad with the city in recent improvements, particularly the creation of a new Grant street, and closed with "Let us all be boosters for Pittsburgh."

Elisha Lee, former vice president of the railroad, with headquarters here, praised the services of Mr. Whiter and predicted good things for Mr. Smith.

Mr. Whiter responded with a description of the importance of the Pittsburgh district, its contribution to railroad tonnage, and the importance of local improvements affected with co-operation of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

PREPARE FOR ADVANCE

"I hope a Pittsburgh Reserve Bank building will soon be under way," he said in this connection.

With regard to local improvements, he said: "Other steps are going to be taken to advance the future of the city."

United States Senator David A. Reed also emphasized the importance of river transportation development, asserting that railroads constitute an agency in this development.

"Railroad baiting is out of style," he said.

James Francis Burke spoke on his recent campaign obsession.

"There are two things I have aimed for during the last year—the election of Herbert Hoover and the continuation of Andrew W. Mellon as secretary of the treasury," he declared to the accompaniment of cheering.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, originally 600 corporations, is now one great corporation representing a $3,000,000,000 investment, and the old attitude of "The public be damned" in public service has been changed to "The public be pleased," he asserted. The Pennsylvania Railroad was the first to install signal devices for the protection of passengers, and the first to employ steel cars, he said.

CLAIM AGAINST STEAMER FILED

A libel was filed in Common Pleas Court against the steamer Smoky City and its owner and master, Charles Zubik, by Tranter Manufacturing Company to collect a claim of $620. The company asks that the steamer be ordered sold. The claim was filed through Attorneys J. M. Stoner & Sons.

To Pave Water St. Below Smithfield

The widening and repaving of Water street from Penn avenue to Smithfield street will be one of the first improvements begun under the 1929 repaving schedule as a result of a motion passed yesterday by Council on joint motions of President James F. Malone and John S. Herron. The Department of Public Works was requested to prepare necessary ordinances authorizing the project after Council had considered a written request from the Water Street District and Lower Downtown Triangle Improvement Association.

Keeping Up With Movies and Plays Through Tales and Pictures

BEBE DANIELS SPLITS WITH PARAMOUNT, HER HOME FOR NINE YEARS

By REGINA CREWE.

Copyright, 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 17.

THE principle topic of conversation in Hollywood is the severing of relations between Paramount and Bebe Daniels after association of nine years during which Bebe has appeared in more than 50 photodramas for Messrs. Zukor and Lasky. The reasons for the split seem shrouded in mystery, the best information obtainable being that Bebe is desirous of making sound pictures, and that the Paramount scheduls has not spot for more audibles.

In addition to a rumor that the star has already come to an understanding with Fox regarding her future activities, there is one that a number of other prominent Paramount players are due to get their walking papers within the next few weeks. If this is so, it likely presages a great influx of stage actors possessing screenable faces and figures, plus the vocal qualities so essential in the talkies.

Having served his apprenticeship as a director by making the Metro two-reel all talking picture, "Code of the Sea," and thereafter emerged as a full-fledged megaphone star, the president has been given the assignment to make a feature length, audible screen version of "Madame X," and will begin work before the end of the month. The cast has not yet been selected in full, but Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., probably will play the important role of the son. Will Barrymore's great experience on both stage and screen, he should develop into one of the finest talking picture directors possessed by Hollywood.

Janet Gaynor Soon To Be Wed

FOLLOWING Lina Basquette's lead, it won't be long now before there will be announcement from Janet Gaynor regarding her approaching marriage. Janet's friends know that she is planning a very quiet wedding to take place before the first of the year. The boy friend, Lydell Peck, of San Francisco, is engaged principally in the management of his father's estate. He is not unfamiliar with the picture business, however, for a couple of years ago he spent some time at the De Mille studios with a view to learning the rudiments of the film industry. So when the future Mrs. Peck talks about movies her hubby will know what it is all about.

It has been decided not to use the musical score of Ziegfeld's "Show Boat" for Universal's movie version. It is said that the show is too much of a light opera, while the screen version is much more dramatic. Therefore it has been arranged to have the best obtainable composers create some special music for the movie. Among other numbers there will be a Negro love song, and one similar in character to "Old Man River."

Kathryn Crawford has been selected as the lucky girl to play opposite Jean Hersholt in "The Climax," which is to be one of Universal's big photoplays.

Tropics Movie For Lon Chaney

BEFORE Lon Chaney begins on Foreign Legion picture, "The Bugle Sounds," written by Maj. Petchkoff, son of Maxim Gorky, he will star in the film version of an original from the pen of Tod Browning. Tod has directed a number of Chaney pictures and is no novice at spinning yarns for them. He knows the type of material best suited to the Metro star, and from what he tells folks about this new one, it is a thriller par excellence. Tod has taken a tropical jungle for his background, and has put Chaney in a character as surprising as any he has thus far portrayed.

Part of the First National studios was converted into a gruesome bit of wartime France by the mysterious explosion which killed one and injured a number of workmen. The French village which you saw in Colleen Moore's picture, "Lilac Time," was totally destroyed. Only a heavy rain, most unusual in California, prevented the flames from spreading and doing vastly more damage than actually was sustained.

One of the star's "let out" by his studio is "Flash," the blonde police dog that has contributed many a thrill to Metro photoplays. No fault is found with "Flash's" histrionic ability, and he is not in the least temperamental. Moreover, it is understood that he passed his voice test for the talkies with high honors. But Metro officials simply decided that dog operas are passe, therefore "Flash" will have to wag his tail on some other lot.

"Sonny" Lee May Get Role

LITTLE DAVIE LEE, who shares honors with Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool," may be seen by his fans—and there are plenty of them—in the Warner picture, "She Knew Men."

Agua Caliente, several miles south of Tiajuana, Mex., is the new Mecca for movie people on pleasure bent. Reservations at the fine new hotel are made weeks, even months, in advance. Right now there isn't any accommodation to be had until long after the new year. Among the attractions are the Casino, with every conceivable gambling game, the dog races, in which slender whippets pursue an electric hare, an occasional bull fight, with the most harrowing features omitted, and, of course, the right to quench a thirst without breaking the law. The place is run by a syndicate of Americans, but the Mexican law makes it necessary to employ four Mexicans to every one American. Much of the tawdriness of Tiajuana has been eliminated in Agua Caliente, which has won a great measure of popularity in the film colony.

Clara Bow's new picture, "The Saturday Night Kid," is from a story written by Wallace Smith. Before he came to Hollywood, Smith was a reporter in Chicago, and became familiar with its underworld. In his story Smith introduces a gangland hotel hangout and makes Clara the girl who presides at the cigar counter.

NEW FILM PLAYER :-: NEW BOOK :-: NEW HEADGEAR

Elsie Allen, former model in an Atlantic City establishment, is the possessor of a movie contract because a Universal unit went to that city to film scenes. While there the movie company staged a beauty contest. Miss Allen, just 18 years old, won it and a contract.

Ruth Taylor, blonde beauty of the screen, calls this volume her beauty book. It is a make-up box made in the shape of a book. It tells a story which is illustrated by the "reader."

Josephine Dunn demonstrates the latest Hollywood headpiece. Shaped like a football helmet, it is suitable for the game or aviation field.

Body of Recluse, 70, Found in Car Home

NEWARK, O., Nov. 17.—The body of Alonzo Grubb, 70, a recluse, who has lived in an abandoned street car at the edge of the city for several years, was found there yesterday. He had been dead more than a week.

MUSIC, FUN IN NEW BILLS

Monday night in the Nixon, Vincent Youmans' "Hit the Deck," musical comedy with Queenie Smith and Charles Purcell and company of 75, will open an engagement of one week.

Katharine Cornell is understood to have an exceptionally fine role to portray in "The Age of Innocence," which opens in the Pitt Monday evening for the week. There will be matinees Thursday and Saturday.

Arthur Hammerstein is the producer of "Golden Dawn," coming to the Alvin next week. Paul Gregory, Bonnie Emerie, Robert Chisholm and Nellie Breen, are featured in a large company.

"Lilac Time," next week in the Gayety, will feature Mary Ann Dentler and Robert Lowes.

Seventeen screen stars of international repute will be seen in "Show People," the main attraction in the Penn next week. This comedy-romance co-stars William Haines and Marion Davies. John Gilbert, Douglas Fairbanks, William S. Hart and many other stars will be seen in it.

Fred Stritt, in a comedy offering, will be a feature of the Keith-Albee vaudeville in the Davis next week. On the screen Norman Kerry and Lewis Stone will be seen in "The Foreign Legion."

Gabriel Hines, formerly prominent in Pittsburgh musical circles, will be guest conductor of the Stanley Orchestra next week. "The Home Towners," Vitaphone version of the George M. Cohan stage success, will be seen on the screen.

Ida Kramer and Bernard Gorcey, of the original stage cast of "Abie's Irish Rose," will be seen in the sound version of that play on the screen of the Grand next week.

Musical accompaniment by players selected from the Hollywood Bowl Symphony Orchestra, will be a feature, "The Melody of Love," the first all-talking picture to be presented in Loew's Aldine, next week.

Max Fields and his "Kuddling Kuties" come next to the Academy. Henri Koller, Ruth Donald and Mabel Erickson are among the principals.

Vaudeville in the Harris next week will include "Mistakes Will Happen," a farce. The two screen features will be Phyllis Haver in "Tenth Avenue" and Owen Moore in "His Last Haul."

"Mogan of the Marines," the latest starring picture of Richard Dix, will be shown in the Liberty next week. Ruth Elder, girl flier, has the featured feminine role.

Billy Dove is practically the only woman player in "The Night Watch," booked in the Regent, beginning today.

Vaudeville in the Sheridan Square next week will include Jean Spence and the Lloyd Sisters in a dance offering. The two screen features will be June Collyer and Don Terry in "Me, Gangster," and Norman Kerry and Lewis Stone in "The Foreign Legion."

BUGS BAER Says

THE Democrats have still a chance left for the next administration.

Inauguration day is four months away.

By that time Mr. Hoover is liable to forget that he was elected.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

He is a very busy man. He intends to go around the world on a battleboat.

He is not only busy, but also smart. He knows the only chance a President has of enjoying the job is before he takes it.

Cruising on an American thunder-boat is also a good plan.

When he tags a foreign land the natives will think:

If that's the President's yacht what does a real battlescow look like?

This will inspire respect for our congressional investigations and cause Europe to fear our subsidiary corporations.

The President is an admiral in the navy and a general in the army. He is also custodian of the vice president until that dignified stowaway reaches the legal age. If Mr. Hoover desired, he could make the army give him a salute of 21 guns for breakfast. Which is only five less than the mayor of Chicago gets every morning.

When the League of Nations sees our head salesman on a high-powered wagon, it will be very respectful for Mr. Hoover is famous for distributing samples.

We would like to take that trip provided that Herbert requires an assistant tourist with a dollar camera.

What we would like to know is whether or not Herbie is going to send back souvenir postcards?

Suppose Raskob gets one showing a humorous view of Waterloo or a group picture of Napoleon's tomb?

Another thing is the laundry problem.

The congressional franking privilege does not extend as far as Madagascar or Peru.

The toughest part of the journey will be that Curtis only rates a rowboat.

BULLETS STOP RUM BOAT

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 17.—Five hundred rounds of ammunition were fired across The Russell, rum-runner, operating between Canada and the United States, before Capt. J. T. Hagglove, in charge of the rum-chaser CC-2246, captured three Erie men in a five-mile chase off the port here.

Hagglove, one of the most active coast guards on the lakes, spotted the speedboat and started in hot pursuit, opening fire immediately. During the volley, when it is said 12 direct hits were made, the rummers gave up hope of saving their cargo and hurled it overboard.

The arrested men gave their names as Mike Semple, James Baker and William Backus.

They were remanded under $5,000 bail each to await a hearing before the United States commissioner next Friday.

W. VA. WOMAN KILLED BY AUTO

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Mrs. Margaret Lash, 83, was struck by an automobile and killed while crossing a street in North Wheeling last night. Frederick Wolser, who said he could not see the aged woman because she was dressed entirely in black, was not held by police.

MEXICO MEETS SISTERS-IN-LAW BUDGET FIGHT DRAW

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—The Treasury Department last night officially announced that for the first time in many years Mexico has balanced its budget. Its estimates show a slight surplus despite the fact that expenditures have been increased more than 5,000,000 pesos since the estimates were first sent to Congress for approval.

The secretary of finance, Montes De Oca, last August announced that revenues for the first six months were more than 10,000,000 pesos in excess of budget estimates, while at the same time economies ordered by President Calles have been effective.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 17.—Sisters-in-law were the principals in an assault and battery case in court here. Mrs. Eleanor Locke, wife of Walter Locke, was acquitted of charges growing out of an alleged attack by her on Mrs. Lucy Van Kirk Duff. Mrs. Locke was assessed costs of the case. Mrs. Duff accused her sister-in-law of blacking an eye, pulling her hair and biting her arm.

City Employes to Attend Convention

Council has authorized three city employes to attend the annual convention of the National Asphalt Association in New Orleans, La., from December 6 to 9. They are S. Lloyd Pillow, assistant superintendent, bureau of highways and sewers; James D. Strain, superintendent of the city asphalt plant; and J. J. Paine, chief of the testing bureau.

department all messages received from the Vestris during her fatal voyage.

Sir Harry Gloster Armstrong, British consul general in New York, also has been ordered by his government to give Tuttle every possible aid in the inquiry. A British nautical expert is expected to be appointed to represent the British interests, as the Vestris was under British registry. A British Board of Trade inquiry is now pending.

Congressman Sol Bloom, of New York, indicated last night he would demand a congressional investigation. Declaring the steamboat inspection service was guilty of neglect, he asserted the Vestris should not have been allowed to sail in her alleged poor condition.

A charge made by a Vestris fireman to officers of the battleship Wyoming that the Vestris sailed with a cracked sea valve and started to ship water soon after leaving port also was to be investigated today.

game today will get under way at 2 o'clock.

While Pitt is not exactly headed for the national championship this year, its typical November varsity, seldom beaten in years gone by, is facing a Cornhusker crew determined to win. The Nebraskans are a stronger, heavier squad, but brains and agility should work to the advantage of the Pittsburghers. The odds on the game favor Nebraska to the extent of about 2½ to 1, but Sutherland is hoping to prove the incorrectness of these figures before the day is done.

DUKES IN STADIUM

For the first time in its history, Duquesne will appear in the Pitt Stadium this afternoon—not as an opponent, but as the home team. It will oppose Thiel, a team that has been seen there three times this season already.

With a splendid record to their credit, the Layden Bluffites hope to set down their tri-state conference rivals with little trouble.

The Dukes have been beaten by Geneva only, and have among their victims the Presidents of Washington-Jefferson.

The kick-off is slated for 2 o'clock. A large crowd is expected. The Duquesne University Alumni Association will present to each Duke player a Red and Blue blanket just before the kick-off. Frank C. Mayer, president, will make the presentations.

Woman Crushed to Death in Engine

BUTLER, Pa., Nov. 17.—Mrs. Ellen Buckley O'Donnell, aged 58, was crushed to death at North Oakland, when her clothing was caught in the engine that was operating a string of oil wells on the O'Donnell farm.

RUM EVIDENCE HITS THREE WARDS

Steadily widening in its scope, the United States government prosecution of 46 defendants, police, politicians and accused violators of the prohibition law in the alleged North Side rum ring conspiracy, today embraced three wards on that side of the Allegheny River in which organized control of liquor traffic is alleged to exist.

The Republican chairmen of these wards have been named by witnesses testifying for the government. Two of them, Samuel J. Grenet, leader of the Twenty-seventh Ward and member of the State Legislature, and John P. O'Donnell, Twenty-second Ward chairman, are accused of complicity in the operations of the alleged system. William Herd, Republican chairman of the Twenty-first Ward, was named as an associate of Daniel McLaughlin, accused as head of the booze distribution in that ward.

ADJOURN TILL MONDAY

The parade of bootleg witnesses, after the preliminary testimony by prohibition agents, was halted today by adjournment yesterday until Monday. There is much speculation among those following the proceedings, including the patient array of counsel which remains on the sidelines with the conduct of the defense entrusted to three attorneys, as to how the respective fortunes of the "big fellows" and the "small fry" have been affected by the developments of the government's case. That distinction appears to be the line of demarcation of defense endeavor.

A score of bootleggers testified Thursday regarding the system which was alleged to prevail in the Twenty-seventh Ward. Assistant United States Attorney Ralph H. Smith shifted his attack to the Twenty-first Ward when the trial got under way yesterday. Eugene Cappi, delivery man, and Arnold Thornburg, former boxer, who described himself as a collector and handy man, implicated McLaughlin as the distributor of 450 or 500 gallons of moonshine weekly, representing a business of $1,500 to $2,000 each week, to some 75 customers in the Twenty-first Ward. Herd frequently visited McLaughlin in his Fulton street home and McLaughlin visited Herd in his public garage, Cappi testified. Both witnesses had entered pleas of no defense to the charge of conspiracy.

TELLS OF THREAT

Government Counsel Smith later conducted his inquiry into the Twenty-second Ward. "You'd better buy from us, or we'll let you know what's what," O'Donnell threatened him, Julius Bassompierre, saloonkeeper at Taylor and Irwin avenues, testified.

Bootleggers gave cumulative testimony supporting the previous recitals of the operation of the system. "Joe Green," or John Harkins, solicited trade in the Twenty-seventh Ward, and McLaughlin was in charge of the dispensation in the Twenty-first Ward, with a standard price of $4 a gallon, delivery in five-gallon cans, and retail at 15, 20 or 25 cents a drink, and 50 cents for a half pint and $1 for a pint, according to their testimony. Abie Berkowitz also provided some of the "stuff," they said.

BOYS' CLUB MAKING CRAFTSMEN

WELFARE LEAGUE TEACHES PRINTING

Today, the Boys' Club of Pittsburgh moves into its new building, 45th and Butler streets, to continue the work among Strip and Lawrenceville district youths that it has carried on for five years. This photo, taken yesterday, shows strip youngsters, Stanley Smith, Jimmy Kaminski, and Frank Grejda, learning to set type in the club's printing shop. Since May, more than 30,000 boys have enjoyed the club's privileges, officials report.

NEW BOYS' CLUB DEDICATED

Mayor Charles H. Kline was the principal speaker at the dedication of the new quarters of the Boys' Club of Pittsburgh, Forty-fifth and Butler streets, last night. The old headquarters of the Lawrenceville Y. M. C. A. has been remodeled as the new club rooms.

An all day inspection preceded the dedication last night. Parents and friends of the 2,150 boy members crowded the building, inspecting facilities and seeing the boys at work in the print shop and woodworking department. The club also boasts of dental and medical clinics.

The dedicatory program also included addresses by C. Dudley Armstrong, A. P. Brill, David I. McCahill, Gen. A. J. Logan, Robert D. Klees and Charles D. Armstrong, all officers of the club. The entertainment consisted of music by the Boys' Club band from Erie; motion pictures and a radio program.

The organization here was founded in 1923 by David I. McCahill. The club is supported by public subscription and offers membership to boys between the ages of 7 and 18 years. The aim of the organization is to give every under-privileged boy an equal chance in life with those more fortunate.

Franklin Bus Man Buys New Line

FRANKLIN, Pa., Nov. 17.—Norman D. Patterson, operating the bus line between Franklin, Harrisville and New Castle, has purchased the bus line operating to Meadville, from Racketa and Hovanes. He takes over the line Monday. Ultimately continuous bus service from Meadville through Franklin to New Castle will be provided.

Weather Conditions.

The pressure over the South Atlantic coast diminished further, highest 30.28 inches at Hatteras. The disturbance that was centered over Texas advanced northeastward to Missouri, increasing in intensity. Lowest barometer is 29.54 inches, at Columbia. This disturbance produced light rains generally over the southern and central plains, the Mississippi and the Ohio valleys and the Lake region and heavy rains in Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri. Kansas City reported 1.16 inches, Wichita 3.28 and Oklahoma City 2.96 inches. Another disturbance appears over Western Colorado and Eastern Utah.

High pressure of marked intensity covers the Pacific coast section. Highest pressure reported is 30.74 inches at Portland, Ore. Temperatures over the Northern Plains states are near 32 degrees. East of the Mississippi they range from 55 to 65 degrees.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling slowly. Stage at Pittsburgh is 11.3 feet. Dam No. 2, 8.1, and Dam No. 6, 8.1. The dams are up.

Anointed, Blind Man Says He Sees

Half a hundred persons last night told of how they had been benefited through faith healing at the testimonial night services in Glory Barn, Carson street. Many remarkable cases were related by the individuals themselves. Following the testimonials, Evangelist John W. Sproul invited all others in needs of healing to come forward and a dozen who did so were anointed.

Matthew Randolph, of 2915 Carson street, who has been blind for 25 years, was one of the number who went forward last night. After being anointed and after he had professed acceptance of Christianity, he told the audience he was able to see the hand and ring of Evangelist Sproul.

and the boys would play for the drinks.

John Crowley, who dispensed moonshine in his Beaver avenue establishment, was telling that he didn't know the name of the man who sold him the stuff.

"He's gone away, John reported, "he's gone away for a couple o' years."

As each witness leaves the stand he hands to United States Attorney Meyer or Assistant Prohibition Administrator Frayne for O. K. the witness card which entitles him to his fee. Crowley varied this procedure by handing his to a reporter for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph — a neat tribute to the power of the press.

Frayne.

Government Prosecutor Ralph Smith asked William Dugan from whom he had bought his moonshine.

"A fellow named Smith," Dugan answered.

"Ralph," whispered a defense lawyer, Edward G. Coll.

"Al," whispered a defense lawyer, Charlie Pritchard.

Pritchard.

The members of the jury should have an improved knowledge of penmanship before the trial is concluded. Seated across from the 12 men and facing them, Harriet M. Cole, official reporter, records the testimony, forming elaborate A's or beautiful B's, as the occasion demands. Miss Cole is the same Miss Cole who reported the $50,000 verdict which Anne Caldwell won over John Hubbard.

A North Side merchant was called as witness by the government—and by mistake. He was a cigar-maker, he testified, and knew naught of making or selling moonshine. Government counsel, at the gentleman's request, explained it was all a mistake.

In the very first row are seated side by side Inspector Faulkner, Assemblyman Grenet and Ward Chairman Herd.

Grenet.

Faulkner.

Mike Coughlin, Beaver avenue, testified that after the Federal grand jury had met he moved to "a dugout," which he explained was the basement, and sold some moonshine. Before that, Mike told he sold the stuff on the street floor—"on," as he said, "the level."

Julius Bassompierre, the government witness who testified selling "lunch, soft drinks and so forth," explaining that the latter was sold at 25 cents and 50 cents a drink, also told of inviting Police Lieut. Edward Moser to have a "glass of beer or a little smile." It was the Christmas season and the "smile," he said, was a drink of "good liquor."

Another unidentified character was injected into the testimony by several witnesses. He was entered in the records of the trial as "Joe," and according to the testimony was the distributor of beer containing a greater alcoholic content than permitted under the law Mr. Volstead framed.

SEATS FOR WELFARE FUND BENEFIT SELLING RAPIDLY

Seats for the midnight entertainment to be given at the Stanley Theater Friday night, November 23, for the benefit of the Welfare Fund are going rapidly. But numerous desirable locations are left.

All seats are reserved and sell at the uniform price of $1, regardless of location. The earliest buyers get the choicest seats.

Tickets are being sold in special box offices in the Sheridan Square Theater, East End, (telephone, Montrose 2785), and the Grand (telephone, Atlantic 4730).

The show, given by the Variety Club of Pittsburgh under the auspices of The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, will be made up of the best acts and the stars from all the Pittsburgh theaters next week.

The Variety Club committee in charge of the show will meet next Wednesday to round out the details.

Teddy Joyce, master of ceremonies at the Penn, is going to assist Fred Stritt, monologist coming to the Davis next week, as announcer and introducer at the benefit performance. It will be a long show, and it was thought desirable that there be two masters of ceremonies, to relieve one another.

E. T. Moores, restaurant proprietor, has offered to serve a supper back stage, gratis, to the performers.

Burnoff and Josephine, who will be at the Penn Theater next week, telegraphed today that they would be glad to participate in the midnight show.

"Sure, we are in on any party for the poor," they wired. "We will help you extract dimes and nickels for the Welfare Fund."

PASTOR BASES SERMON ON VESTRIS SINKING AT SEA

In his evening sermon tomorrow on "What Must You Do to Be Saved," the Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton, pastor, Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street, will refer to the sinking of the Vestris and draw some pointed lessons therefrom.

He will answer such questions as "What Is the New Birth?" "Is There a Difference Between Saved and Unsaved?" and "Is There Really Anything to Be Saved From?" A special musical program will be given by the double and male quartet choirs. Dr. Shelton's sermon subject at the morning service is "Who Is Wise?"

The annual thank-offering service of the First United Presbyterian Church, Union avenue, North Side, will be held tomorrow, when the women of the church give a special offering to the cause of the missions each year. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. J. Alvin Orr, speaks at the morning service at 11 o'clock on the subject, "God's Grace in the Churches" and in the evening on "The Enthusiasm and Patience of Jesus."

The Rev. W. L. McIlwan preaches both morning and evening in the Third Presbyterian Church tomorrow. His morning sermon subject is "The Glory of Christ." In the evening he will deliver a sermon on "The Extra Years."

"What Things Enrich Life?" is the sermon theme of the Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson at the Rodef Shalom Temple, Fifth and Morewood avenues, tomorrow morning at 10:45 o'clock.

"For Christ and the Fatherland. What?" is the sermon theme of the Rev. Dr. G. E. Brenneman, pastor of Smithfield Methodist Episcopal Church, Smithfield street and Seventh avenue, tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Dr. Brenneman's evening sermon will be on the subject "What Is the Problem of Our Young People?"

The German sermon tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the German Evangelical Protestant (Smithfield) Church, Smithfield street, will be on the subject, "The Heavenly Father." This sermon will be preached by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Carl A. Voss, who also will give the English sermon at 11 o'clock on "Partners With God."

The Rev. Dr. Walter B. Greenway, of Philadelphia, speaks tomorrow morning at 10:45 o'clock and evening at 8 o'clock at the First Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Dr. Clarence Edward Macartney is pastor of the church.

"Immortality," an answer to Clarence Darrow, is the subject of the open forum tomorrow evening at 7:45 o'clock in East End Christian Church, South Highland avenue and Alder street. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers, will conduct the open forum. He also will speak at the morning service at 11 o'clock on "Roll Call."

The sermon themes of the Rev. Dr. C. Wallace Petty, pastor, First Baptist Church, Bellefield avenue and Bayard street, tomorrow, are: "Man's Fight With Fear" and "A Psycho-analyst of Ancient Babylon" the third in a series of sermons on "Modern Fads in Ancient Settings."

The morning sermon topic of the Rev. Dr. W. Wofford T. Duncan, pastor, Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, tomorrow, is "America's Need of Christ." Dr. Duncan speaks at the evening service on "The Life Giving Book."

The subject of the sermon of the Rev. George W. F. Doege, pastor, at the main service at Second St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Pride street, tomorrow morning, is "What Does Jesus Mean to Us?" Prior to this service a communion and confession service will be held.

The Volunteers of America hold two special services tomorrow evening. One will be held at the North Side Chapel, North Diamond street, where Maj. Richard H. Ivey will be the principal speaker, and the other at the East Liberty Mission, where the speaker will be Chief White Eagle, Indian evangelist. Special musical programs have been arranged for both meetings.

Tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, the Rev. Dr. William J. Reid, pastor, First United Presbyterian Church, Fifth avenue and Thackeray street, preaches on the subject "A Tragic Soul History." "A Tonic for Discouragement" is his subject in the evening at 8 o'clock.

"What Difference Does It Make to Believe in the Fatherhood of God?" is the sermon theme of the Rev. Dr. Henry H. Forsyth, pastor, Sixth Presbyterian Church, Forbes street and Murray avenue, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. His sermon subject is "The Charm of Our Bible."

The pulpit of Lawrenceville Presbyterian Church will be occupied tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock by Dr. W. S. Lerman, of Africa. The pastor, the Rev. H. M. Paul, preaches in the evening at 8 o'clock on the subject "Taking to Lifeboats."

The Rev. George D. Massay, pastor, Hazelwood Christian Church, speaks tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock on the subject "A Father's Reception." His morning sermon theme is "Family of God."

The Rev. Dana Z. Eckert speaks tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the Church of the Brethren, Greenfield avenue. In the morning at 11 o'clock, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Galen B. Royer, preaches on the subject "The Body of Christ."

The Rev. W. G. Weston, evangelist, speaks at three services tomorrow at the East End Gospel Tabernacle, Lamont avenue. His sermon themes are: "Patching up the Old Bag," "The Stone that Blocks the Way" and "The Pot at the End of the Rainbow."

Three Buds Honored At Deb Breakfast By Mrs. Evans

THE debutantes haven't been figuring in the news much during the last few days, have they? With the exception of Elisabeth Orr's coming-out party yesterday at the Twentieth Century Club and the Brainard luncheon on Wednesday, there has been little to tell you about the activities of our group of buds. We must remember, though, that it is just mid-November, and that in spite of its early start, our season is really just in its first few weeks.

I know of one debutante party today, though, and that is the buffet breakfast which Mrs. Thomas Evans, Jr., of Ingin avenue, and her daughter, Katharine Ann, gave in the Twentieth Century Club. Their particular guests of honor were three of the buds. Elisabeth Orr, Olivercita Sutton and Katharine Schley, and the others present included the remainder of the debutantes and some of the younger group.

Brilliantly colored chrysanthemums in the orange and bronze shades were used in decorating the buffet table, together with huge clusters of hothouse grapes.

THERE is an engagement too, announced just today, in which I feel sure you will be greatly interested, since both the girl and the man are members of well-known Pittsburgh families. This is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. James Neale, of Pembroke place, of the engagement of their daughter, Sally Tabor Todd, to Tyson Nimick, son of Mrs. William Howard Nimick, of Fifth avenue.

A PARTY given down in Sewickley Valley on Thursday afternoon was a tea which Mrs. Emil Heumann, of Glen Osborne, held in honor of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Newton Chapin, of the Schenley Apartments.

Mrs. James Crutchfield and Mrs. J. Donald Berg poured tea, and the aides included Miss Catherine Miller, Mrs. James B. Haines III, Mrs. Frederick Weston and Miss Catherine Crutchfield.

AND speaking of Sewickley, I understand that Mrs. James West Arrott, Jr., is returning to her home in Beaver street today after spending the last week in New York. In the East now are the Frank W. Jarvises, of Linden place. They joined their daughter, Dorothy, who is a student at Dobbs Ferry, and are planning to attend the Yale-Princeton game today at Princeton.

* * *

SEVERAL Pittsburghers are also in Gotham just now. The junior James H. Reeds, Frances Ford and James H. Reed, III, are at the Weylin, and so is Mrs. Charles E. Jackson. Then the Thurston Wrights are staying at the Berkshire, as are the Matthew Taylors, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Collord and Laura Collord.

* * *

MRS. WALTER L. HEIMERT, of Aylesboro avenue, entertained with a bridge shower in her home Thursday night in honor of Miss Agnes A. Weaklen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert F. Weaklen, of Wellesley avenue, who has selected November 27 as the date for her marriage to Harry T. Comer, of the East End. The ceremony will be performed in Sacred Heart Catholic Church, and Miss Eleanor Weaklen will be her sister's maid of honor.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. WILMER J. CRILL, of Bellevue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Crill, to Sidney Smith, Jr., of the North Side, which took place last Saturday in the Trinity Lutheran Church, North Side.

THE annual Mount de Chantal benefit bridge tea will be held next Saturday afternoon in the University Club. Miss Adelaide Morgan and Miss Catherine Wright are in charge of the sale of candy; Mrs. G. G. O'Brien, Jr., prizes; Miss Louise Valsack and Mrs. James Patterson, prizes; Mrs. J. J. McQuillan, arrangements; Mrs. Edward Lee Bladel, publicity; Mrs. James P. Barr, Miss Alice Gleninger, Mrs. James Patterson, Miss Josephine Nixon, Mrs. Alex Powell and Mrs. C. P. McLaughlin, reception.

A BRIDGE party for men and women members of the Shannopin Country Club will be held tonight, with Mrs. J. L. Rodrigues as chairman.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES J. ROCKWELL, who formerly lived in Pittsburgh, are stopping at the Hotel Schenley for an extensive visit.

* * *

THE annual tea and sale given by the Columbia Hospital Auxiliary will be held next Saturday from 2 to 5 o'clock in the Nurses' Dormitory. Cake, candy and aprons will be on sale. Mrs. Louis Gerber is president of the auxiliary, Mrs. Robbin Wolf, vice president; Mrs. G. Hartin Boyd, recording secretary, and Miss Mildred Eller, corresponding secretary.

Pledge Adopted by War Cure Meeting

THE four sessions of the Western Pennsylvania conference on the cause and cure of war held here yesterday were brought to a close with the adoption of a resolution pledging active support of the Briand-Kellogg multilateral treaty and urging its acceptance by the United States. At similar conferences to be held this month all over the United States such action is to be taken under the nine organizations making up the National Committee on the Cause and Cure of War. Forty co-operating organizations sent delegates numbering into the hundreds to the sessions which were held yesterday at Carnegie Music Hall and the Schenley Hotel.

Aviation removes isolation, Miss Amelia Earhart (Lady Lindy) told the women at their morning session as she urged the mothers present to see to it that airplanes were licensed and made safe. "That is your part," she said, "for your boys and your girls will go up." The opening talk by Mrs. A. H. Bowman, general chairman of the conference, was on "Fighting the Good Fight." Mrs. Ramsay Burton, of Erie, in discussing international relations, spoke of the League of Nations and the World Court and Miss Josephine Schain, secretary of the national committee, and former secretary to Carrie Chapman Catt, its founder, told how the committee came to be.

In her talk on "Hearts and Habits" at the luncheon session in the Schenley Hotel, Mrs. Dan Everett Waid, of New York, pointed out that in times of trouble and distress the world is one great sympathetic heart, but that the age-old habits of thinking and acting work against such a unity at other times. The habit of distrusting strange tongues, the habit of fearing unknown people, the habit of saying that war is inevitable, the habit of thinking things must be because they have been—all these Mrs. Waid mentioned in a talk that was delightfully humorous and at the same time tensely serious. Women must get the habit of believing the impossible can be accomplished and the habit of home education on the question of peace without being such pests that peace becomes a most warlike subject, and they must be internationally-minded, she declared. Miss Jane Shaw Ward, head of the Y. M. C. A. Training System in China, asked for a sympathetic understanding from the United States as a help in stabilizing the future China. Mrs. Harry G. Samson, presiding at the session, read her own "Battle Hymn of Peace" and four vested choir boys from the Episcopal Church of the Ascension chanted a part of the church ritual, while Miss Geraldine Alter, typified "Peace."

Miss Schain spoke again in the afternoon, interpreting the Kellogg treaty, and "America's Peace Policy" was outlined by Dr. Charles Clayton Morrison.

Dr. Gill Robb Wilson's address and a program of music were the highlights in the evening. Dr. Wilson, who is former national American Legion chaplain, speaking on "A People of Destiny," said "If you will take the profit of war and legislate the profiteer into oblivion, you will have little trouble." Miss Mathilda Flinn sang and Dr. Charles Heinroth played an organ overture.

MISS ELIZABETH M. LEE will speak at the annual international vesper service at Central Branch Y. W. C. A. tomorrow at 4 o'clock, the closing event in the World Week of Prayer. Miss Lee, who will speak on "The World's First Business," has been a missionary to Japan, has traveled extensively in Europe and the Orient, and but recently returned from several months' study with the Sherwood Eddy party, whose tour of Europe is based on the principle of international understanding. E. J. McLuckie will give several solos and will direct the singing of the choir. As a prelude James Phillip Johnston will play several organ selections. Violin numbers will be given by Miss Marie Kleyle, accompanied by Miss Jean Sawhill.

Following the service, tea will be served in the lobby. Mrs. John R. Milliken will pour. The membership committee and girls of the clubs and councils will aid Miss Stella Minnemeyer, chairman of the tea.

MISS H. MARIE DERMITT, executive secretary of the Civic Club of Allegheny County, spoke before a well attended meeting of the College Club yesterday afternoon. Her subject "What Price Beauty" dealt with national, state and local opportunities to increase the natural advantages of the country. Miss Dermitt outlined the extension program for national parks; the acquisition of state parks in various states and pointed out the opportunities existing to create a more beautiful Pittsburgh. She spoke also of the conservation of the water power of the country and outlined the Federal City plan for the improvement of the capital city.

THE Mothers of Democracy will give a card party the afternoon of December 7 in the Congress of Clubs as a benefit for their Christmas work among the disabled soldiers.

THE Thanksgiving meeting of the Syria Ladies Social Club will take place in Syria Mosque, Saturday afternoon. An artistic program will be preceded by a short business session. Mrs. B. Dale Dickson, dramatic reader, will present a cutting from "The Little Minister" by Barrie and couplets by Browning and Kipling.

Elsie Breese Mitchell, soprano, will include among her numbers a Schubert group in accordance with the world-wide plan of celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of Schubert's death. Mrs. Bertha Gross King will contribute piano solos.

DEBORAH REBECKAH LODGE will hold a bingo party on Tuesday evening in Malta Temple, North Side.

MISS SARA SOFFEL spoke at yesterday afternoon's meeting of the Dormont New Century Club, her subject being "International Relations." Mrs. H. H. Hanna was guest soloist; Mrs. H. H. Harsh, program leader, and Mrs. N. L. Kirkland, chairman of hostesses.

* * *

TRINITY BRANCH Girls' Friendly Society, will hold its annual bazar next Thursday in Trinity House. Supper will be served, there will be a "Grab Bag Lady" and the booths will represent the different nations, one of them being typical of "Santa Claus Land." Miss Catherine Born is chairman.

* * *

THE annual donation and visiting day of Passavant Hospital will be held Thursday. The Ladies' Aid Society will conduct a bazar in the Nurses' Home, Reed and Miller streets. Tea will be served from 2 to 5 o'clock.

* * *

THE Wednesday Afternoon Club of Carnegie Institute of Technology will hold its annual dinner and entertainment this evening at 7 o'clock in the Faculty clubroom.

PARENTS HUNTED FOR ABANDONING DEAF MUTE

Agents of the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society today are searching for Mr. and Mrs. William Borres, of 1200 Arch street, North Side, who are alleged to have abandoned their two children, William, 3, a deaf mute, and John, 19 months. The children are being cared for in the Juvenile De-

North Side police went to the Arch street address yesterday and found the two children alone in their home. The Humane Society was notified and the children taken to the detention home. Society representatives say the children were without anything to eat and in need of attention.

According to police, the mother left her husband and family and then the husband and father went in search of his wife.

Civic Club's Mental Tests Next Week

The fifteenth semi-annual mental test for students of public, private and parochial high schools will be held next Saturday morning by the exceptionally-able-youths'- committee of the Civic Club of Allegheny County. The purpose of the tests, which will be given in Room 104, Industries Building, Carnegie Institute of Technology, is to obtain a list of students who, because of unusual ability, would profit from a college course and to encourage them and their parents as to their pre-eminent fitness for a college education.

Dr. Davidson to Address Meeting

Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent of public schools, and Sir Frederick McGill, of Long, will be the speakers at the twelfth annual banquet of the Manufacturers' representatives to be held in William Penn Hotel Thursday night. About 500 persons from the tri-state district will attend. Executives and buyers of wholesale grocery and drug houses will be the honor guests.

Palestine Survey To Be Discussed

The report of the experts on Palestine submitted to the Joint Palestine Survey Commission will be the subject of discussion at a meeting held by the local Zionists this evening at the Y. M. & W. H. A., Bellefield avenue. Dr. H. M. Snitzer, who recently was in Palestine, will lead the discussion.

Man Fall Killed Still Unidentified

KINGWOOD, W. Va., Nov. 17.—Authorities are trying to identify the body of a man, about 55, found beneath a bridge at Crowbridge, whence he had fallen and fractured his skull. The man wore a dark plaid jacket, weighed 170, had dark hair and dark mustache streaked with gray.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

SOME time today or tomorrow WJAS hopes to get on the air with its increased power of 1,000 watts. The new equipment is ready to go with the exception of a necessary accessory which is now on its way here from the factory.

Exactly five listeners have disapproved the new scheme. Those who have expressed themselves against it are several hundred in number.

Margaret Murphy, of 2564 Fifth avenue, reported that WCAE comes in better now than ever before. C. G. Connelly, of 345 Moore avenue, Knoxville, expressed himself likewise. In the same mail came a letter from G. E. Sternquist, Beaver Falls, declaring that he is able to get KFI with ease, but has much trouble tuning in WCAE. KFI is in Los Angeles. He would like to see WCAE on its old wavelength of 461.3 meters, now being used by WSM, Nashville.

Five up-to-date sets given trouble in tuning for WCAE, H. L. Fraser, 2503 Carson street, reported. He said: "I consider any set a good set if it can separate WCAE and WJAS."

A few listeners asked that the Radio Commission be allowed another week before any formal protest is made. All agreed that the Pittsburgh wavelength arrangement is improper at the present time.

RADIO BIG GAMES

Three big football games will be broadcast by Pittsburgh stations today. WCAE will have the Yale-Princeton game at 1:45 p. m. KDKA will broadcast the Bucknell-Wisconsin titular match at 2 o'clock, and KQV will give play-by-play returns of the Carnegie Tech-Notre Dame contest at 2:20 p. m.

Vice President Charles G. Dawes will speak on the Isaac Walton League program over KDKA at 8 o'clock. Julius von Spindler Huehn, Pittsburgh bass-baritone, will be heard from WEAF tonight at 7 o'clock in the semi-finals of the Atwater Kent audition.

Colin O'More and Jessica Dragonette take the leading roles in "Mlle. Modiste." Victor Herbert's comic opera, which will be heard over KDKA at 9 o'clock.

WJAS announced extra features for their Sunday program list tonight. They are a sacred service conducted by the Rev. I. W. Thompus, of the Oakland Baptist Church at 2 o'clock; an organ recital by Cyril Guthoerl at 8 o'clock, and a sacred service from the First English Lutheran Church at 7:30 p. m. These additions were received too late for the regular detailed radio programs which will appear on page 7, part 5 of the Sunday Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

MACKRELL SPAULDING MORTON GARDNER MARTIN GILDEHAUS WRIGHT

Here are the judges of the advertisements sent in during the final period of the advertisement writing test conducted by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. These men picked the winner of the grand prize of $1,000, whose name will be announced tomorrow. They are Joseph N. Mackrell, Arthur M. Spaulding, J. W. Morton, Jr., A. I. Gardner, G. B. Martin, E. R. Gildehaus and John E. Wright.

CONFERENCE ON COAL OPENS MONDAY

The public was invited today to attend two special meetings planned in connection with the second international conference on coal, which opens Monday at Carnegie Institute of Technology.

President Thomas S. Baker announced that Tuesday and Friday evenings meetings would be held at which topics of popular appeal would be discussed. The first meeting, Tuesday evening, will bring to the platform of Carnegie Music Hall John Hays Hammond, famous engineer, and Edwin E. Slosson, director of Science Service, an expert in "popular" science.

At the public meeting Friday night, Georges Claude, French inventor and one of the most picturesque figures in the modern world of science, will speak. He is to tell how he plans to get power from the sea by utilizing the difference in temperatures at the surface of the water and at the ocean bed. Claude is the inventor of the neon light, used in advertising signs.

Drinking Constable Fined, Sent to Jail

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 17.—Constable Isaac Fenton, of Meadowlands, Chartiers township, was convicted in court here of driving an automobile while intoxicated. Judge Erwin Cummins fined him $200 and sentenced him to the workhouse for three months. Fenton accused a Houston bus of crowding him off the road and was at the office of the bus company raising a disturbance when Corporal Stacey of the State Police took him into custody.

DAPPER-KILLING SUSPECT GETS 6 YEARS FOR THEFT

Sentences of three to six years in the penitentiary were pronounced upon John Meckley, 24, of 721½ Whitney avenue, Wilkinsburg; Edward McCallin, 26, of 6820 Simenton street and Leroy Madden, 22, of 204 Paulson avenue, following a two-day trial on eight charges of robbing drug stores of liquor, before Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff, of Greensburg.

Meckley was in the limelight during the search for the murderer of Dr. Harry R. Dapper recently, it being given out by police that he had confessed to the murder. Further investigation showed he could not have had a part in that crime.

Meckley was arrested by State Policeman I. D. Kelly, while it is alleged he was trying to steal gasoline for a stolen automobile. Following the clue of the car, Kelley testified, Meckley confessed to eight drug store robberies in Allegheny county and to several jobs in Ambridge and Beaver Falls and implicated Whitney and Madden. All made confessions, which were offered in evidence. Their defense was that the confessions were obtained by third degree methods on part of the police.

DOPE PEDDLER SENTENCED

William Long, alias "Six Foot Slim," Homestead Negro, will do a stretch of two years in the Atlanta Federal prison for dope peddling. He was convicted in Federal Court and sentenced by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker. Twice, it was testified, he sold cocaine to government agents, but escaped before he was arrested. After indictment he was found serving a term in the prison at Buffalo, N. Y., and was brought here upon completion of his sentence.

Ex-Bank Treasurer Dies in Philadelphia

HARRISBURG, Nov. 17.—Robert Levick Morgan, 59, former assistant treasurer of West End Trust Company of Philadelphia, died at his home here early today.

ZAIN WINNERS KNOW SUNDAY

The winner of the grand prize of $1,000 in the $15,000 Zain Ad-Test will be announced in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph tomorrow.

About 300,000 advertisements by amateur writers were submitted during the course of the test.

Sixty thousand were received this week.

That means a lot of work for the judges, but they are giving careful consideration to every ad turned in.

The judges are experienced advertising men.

Six Months in Jail For Rum Smugglers

Hector Gordon and Charley Gordon, alias "John Salt," caught September 30, landing 1,200 quarts of Canadian ale and 240 quarts of Canadian rye on the lake shore at Erie, were each sentenced to serve six months in the Erie county jail by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker. They pleaded nolle contendere to the smuggling charge. They said they were engaged by another man to bring the liquor ashore from a large boat in Lake Erie, which had been loaded at Port Dover, Ont.

New Temperature Mark in Capital

HARRISBURG, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—A maximum of 70.3 degrees yesterday set a new record for temperature on November 16, in this city. It was the second straight day on which a new record was established.

SIX ARRESTED BY LOTTERY RAIDERS

Six dozen books of lottery tickets were seized in a raid on an alleged lottery distributing point in the rear room of a confectionery store at 1540 Wylie avenue, late yesterday. Six men were arrested on charges of operating a lottery by Police Inspector James Hoey, who conducted the raid.

The store was operated, police say, by Harry Friedman, who also was charged with violating the Snyder act when a quantity of moonshine was found in his place, according to Inspector Hoey. The lottery tickets operating on the clearing house returns, and other paraphernalia, were reported seized.

Inspector Hoey said that he had been on the trail of the pool operators for several months, but not until yesterday was he able to nab them. Those arrested besides Friedman were Edward Sorcz, 24, of 96 Elm street; Elwood Gillson, 33, of 1510 Webster avenue; Washington Lewis, 32, of 3 Tannehill street; George Wilkinson, 35, and Ben Wilkinson, 29, both of 5 Tannehill street.

How the Term "Hall-Mark" Originated

THE term "hall-mark," as applied to silverware, was derived from the fact that gold and silver articles were originally assayed and marked at the Company Hall of the Guild of Gold and Silver Smiths.

Sayings of Mrs. Solomon

By HELEN ROWLAND

But All the Nice Ones Are Married

WHEREFORE, my Daughter, are all of the NICE men married?

For, verily, verily, there's a reason!

Lo, in the Garden of Love, only the green fruit and the lemons remain ungathered; and a ripe and tender peach is harder to find than a long skirt on Broadway.

HELEN ROWLAND

Go to. Knowest thou a man that possesseth all the virtues and talents of a good husband?

Behold, some woman hath already clinched him to her side with hooks of matrimony!

Knowest thou a man with charming and devoted ways, and that subtility so dear to the heart of woman?

Lo, he is "somebody's husband;" and the sign blazoned upon his brow readeth "Private Property. Do not trespass."

Knowest thou a man who is not puffed up with his own conceit?

Alas, he is already in a woman's keeping, and safe-guarded with all her might and her cunning against the invasions of the husband-snatchers.

Knowest thou a self-sacrificing man, who laboreth hard in the vineyards and bringeth home many shekels?

Go to. He is even now the legal slave of some heavily upholstered matron, and the humble father of five children.

Knowest thou a man that is steady and wise and modest?

A man that is gentle and generous, and understandeth women?

A man that hearkeneth when a woman speaketh, and rejoiceth not in the sound of his own voice?

A man that is an adornment in the drawing room, a comfort in the kitchen and a decoration at the dinner table?

Cast not longing eyes upon him, oh my Daughter!

For he is already "somebody's darling!"

Yea, he is much married—and not for THEE!

Verily, verily, all the nice men are married!

For NO man seemeth desirable until the steam-roller of matrimony hath passed over him and smoothed out all his kinks and his rough edges and splintered his egotism!

Thus, indeed, doth a man's charm become visible; and to his WIFE belong the fruits of her labors! SELAH.

LOVE IN A GARDEN

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

HIGH winds; Thanksgiving coming; stacked corn rustling in the country; crowds rigid with after-theater cold standing on the shores of the curb hopelessly hailing the full-up taxi-fleet in the city; an immaculate moon of icy fire and a cold Cupid in an empty garden.

That's Autumn—almost Winter. An empty garden seat holding out cold arms. Its corners full of dry brown leaves herded together by the madcap wind. Full of leaves and memories. The bird-fountain shallow and cold, with nobody much splashing in it but those English gentlemen the starlings—and they bathe as long as there is anybody to lend a hand with a teakettle of hot water to melt the ice in their swimming pool.

No evening thrush with the silver song that is an invitation to and a souvenir to Love! Nothing of a love-story left in the garden but the still figure of stone, seeming to shiver in the moonlight, of the Cupid that watched over two lovers in the Summer.

Very well—to him—if the play was not just played and is over, as dead as Summer. If it has just moved indoors! Why then he is not so cold, only very lonely. For that is a very different story, and he has his memories!

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Tea Party

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

On some Sunday soon I am going to have four couples for tea. I am a little in doubt as to just what to serve. I would appreciate it very much, therefore, if you would advise me just what to serve, and how. READER.

ARE you having high tea? This is a meal something like the old fashioned Sunday night supper. I would suggest cold chicken or cold roast beef or cold turkey with a substantial salad. I would have hot biscuits or hot buttered toast, jelly or jam. I would have delicious tea, of course. And ice cream, an old fashioned Brown Betty with hard sauce or a cocanut cream cake for dessert. This meal should be very "homey" and old-times. This will delight your guests. If you serve ice cream, little cakes or chocolate layer cake would be nice. Not too thick a cake, but just two layers, with the top layer well iced.

The Host Pays

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I was walking with a girl, and we met another couple whom I never met before. The young man suggested that we join them and asked us to have a soda with them. Who should offer to pay the bill?

2. If the other party pays the bill, is it proper for me to offer to reimburse him for half the amount, although very small? Or would it be sufficient just to thank him? K. M.

THE young man who suggested that you join them for a soda pays the check for the soda. Since he extended the invitation, he, as host, pays for the hospitality he suggested.

2. No, it would not be proper or polite for you to offer to pay for any part of the amount. It would be awkward for him, and he might even be socially hurt by the fact that you misinterpreted his invitation. Thank him for his friendliness and say how much you enjoyed the party. And probably an opportunity will appear soon for you to return the invitation.

"Buffing Silver"

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. If Bessie Brown is married to James Thorne, should the silver acquired after marriage be engraved with the initials B. B. T., these being the first letters of the name, Bessie Brown Thorne?

2. Do you chance to know what success attends the removal of undesired engraving from silver and the substitution of other lettering? Recently a well-known jewelry house in this city told me that it had been done by them, and it is buffed out, but I have been reluctant to experiment. READER.

YES, the silver and linen acquired after marriage are monogramed with the woman's married initials, in this case B. B. T.

2. If this buffing and substitution is carefully done by a reputable house, it usually is successful. So if you have faith in the firm and in the man who is advising you, I think you won't have to worry. Of course you will try one piece first to determine the success of the operation.

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern

A TRIM LITTLE MODEL FOR A TINY MISS.

Printed taffeta or challe could be used for this dainty frock. It is made with plait fulness below a pointed vestee, and has plait fulness also at the underarm seams. The back continues over the shoulder on the front in yoke effect above soft gathers. A small, round collar finishes the neck. The sleeve in wrist length is the popular "bishop" style, gathered at the wrist to a narrow band cuff. As here pictured dimity in red and white was used, with narrow bands of red organdy set on in rows on the skirt portion and binding the collar. The sleeve may be cut short as pictured in the small view.

The pattern for this pleasing style is cut in five sizes: 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 years. To make the dress with long sleeves for a 2-year size will require 2⅛ yards of 27-inch material together with ¼ yard of contrasting material for facing on collar cuffs and vestee. If made with short sleves 1⅞ yards will be required and the contrasting material. To finish as illustrated will require 5¼ yards of narrow banding.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department. The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Marion Shows Bitter Resentment Against Her Stepfather

INTO Marion Morton's tear-swollen eyes flashed startled, incredulous joy at my assurance that she came first with her mother and that her stepfather held only second place in Lillian's heart. For a moment her eyes held mine, then they suddenly were averted from my face.

"I'm a selfish beast, I know," she said shamefacedly, "but do you know that isn't enough for me? I don't want him to have even second place. I want him to go away and never come back. I hate him!"

There was temper in her last words and I made no answer to them whatever. I knew her strong sense of justice, her heritage from her mother, and I waited for the retraction which I was sure would come.

"Of course, I don't mean that last exactly," she said after a little. "He has tried to be nice to me, I know, and he hasn't tried to make me obey him yet in anything. He'd better not, either," she added darkly, and I saw that she was indulging herself in the age-old prejudice against step-parents.

"I fancy he will leave all your disciplining to your mother, my dear," I said, keeping my face straight with difficulty.

Marion's lips quirked into a reluctant grin.

"Oh! I'm not afraid that he's going to beat me, or lock me up on bread and water," she said, "but it doesn't stand to reason that he's never going to interfere with me. He's a man, you know, and they just naturally can't help bossing. But that isn't what's ailing me," she finished, honestly. "It's just that I want my mother all to myself as we used to be, and I can't have her that way any more."

"Some day," I said slowly, "we're going to thrash this question all out. I'm going to tell you some things about your mother's life which will make you understand more clearly why she has become reconciled to your stepfather. But today isn't a propitious time. You're in no mood to listen, and I do not feel adequate to the recital. Now suppose we go back to that secret you wish to tell me, and the thing you want me to keep from you. Is it something which would be wrong for your mother not to know?"

"I don't know," Lillian's daughter said, adding surprisingly: "It's a secret I've kept from her ever since my grandmother died—it's hers, really—and I'm sure there's no harm in it. My grandmother told me to tell nobody, and I've obeyed her. But now that I'm going off to school and he is in the house, I'm not going to risk leaving it around for him to find. And I can't take it to school. If he weren't around, I'd disobey my grandmother's wish and tell my mother, for of course I can't go on always without telling somebody. I might get sick or die. And you're next to my mother, Auntie Madge, so I've come to you."

I debated my course swiftly. Instinctively my loyalty to Lillian forbade my sharing a secret with Marion from which she was excluded. On the other hand, Marion was in a state of mind where, if I refused to keep her secret, she might share it with someone less loyal or less discreet than I. And no doubt it was only some vagary of her grandmother's mind. I knew that Tom Morton's mother, for whom Lillian had tenderly cared in her last days, had lacked the possession of her full faculties for weeks before her death.

"All right, my dear," I said at last, "I won't fail you. Tell me what you wish me to do, and I will say nothing about it until you give me permission."

She threw her arms about my neck and kissed me warmly.

"You're such a darling, Auntie Madge!" she said explosively, and then she went to the door and locked it, investing the act with a melodramatic little air of mystery, which amused me in spite of my very real qualms as to the wisdom of letting her confide in me.

Cucumber Peppers

Pare and chop three medium sized cucumbers and season with a grated onion, a teaspoonful each of chopped celery leaves and chopped mint leaves. Pepper, salt, a dessertspoonful of sugar, and two teaspoonfuls of sharp French dressing. Mix well, then add enough white mayonnaise to bind the mixture. Have ready the red bottled pimentoes, drain and place on lettuce leaves and fill the peppers with the cucumber mixture. Top with a stuffed olive on each salad.

Horoscopes

Sunday, November 18

SUNDAY'S horoscope stresses the activities of mind and spirit rather than the organized or institutional aspects of religion, church or charity. Its accent is on the metaphysical and mystical, accompanied by definite social, domestic and romantic high lights. Poetry, music and art should flourish, but do not jeopardize the finances.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of singular or eccentric curves in business contacts, possibly leaning to the secret and subtle rather than to the above-board methods and agreements. There may be much initiative and many bold strokes, but safeguard the finances. Personal affairs are gratifying.

A child born on this day may be unusually or singularly talented, and while it may be original, adventurous and independent it may not always succeed financially. It may be extravagant and self-indulgent.

The ways of God are as the number of the souls of men.
—Persian Mystic.

Monday, November 19

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for pleasant relations in social, domestic and affectional affairs, but in business and generally it holds a menace of fraud, deception or slander or misrepresentation; this possibly through letters or writings. Safeguard against these and be careful as to sudden impulses to make changes.

Those whose birthday it is may have some pleasant personal contacts and activities during the year, but there is a menace of misrepresentation, slander or fraud, and probably through writings or irregularity in contracts or agreements. Make changes cautiously.

A child born on this day may have many desirable social and intellectual qualities, but a tendency to trickiness and want of integrity should be disciplined in infancy.

How can we expect that our little personal will is competent to sway our destinies when we cannot comprehend the universal plan as a whole?—Stuart Armour.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Tired Senses Fail to Warn of Danger

"CARELESSNESS is one of the most contagious diseases in America today and at the present rate of increase it will soon be one of the most fatal of diseases."

I read this in a sensible article relating to accidents. There should be many similar articles and continuous education on this subject. With the increasing use of machinery in the small, as well as the large industries, there are greater hazards to life and limb. The common use of the automobile and all the other advances in the arts of civilization, contribute new dangers.

It is encouraging that safety devices are being developed. Owners of factories and mills have cooperated with industrial commissions, boards of health and other official agencies, to lessen the dangers of industry.

But in spite of all life-saving procedures and clever safety-devices, the rate of increase in accidents is truly alarming. It is a menace to the welfare of the race and should be dealt with energetically.

I have seen no recent discussion of the relation of fatigue to the happening of accidents. While I was commissioner of health in New York City, the department made a study of street accidents. The facts were laid out in the form of a "graph."

In this graphic way it was easy to see exactly what was happening. There was an unbroken ascending line, beginning at a point on a street indicating early morning, and reaching its highest point between four and five in the afternoon. The number of street accidents in the late afternoon was really terrifying.

You will say at once that at four o'clock and thereafter the school children, office workers and laborers were on their way home. Of course they were on their way to their duties in early morning, too, but the accidents then were proportionately much less.

We concluded that it is the element of fatigue that makes the difference. After a hard day's work everybody is tired in the late afternoon. When we are tired, we are less alert, less watchful of danger, more indifferent to it.

There can be no doubt that to any calling where strenuous effort is required, accidents are sure to be more frequent during the period of greatest fatigue. There are many other factors, of course, but we cannot disregard this one.

It is not good for anybody to work so hard or in such a form of work as to be habitually tired. Honest fatigue is good for anybody, but daily effort so hard as to wear out body and mind is no good. Not alone does it make you more liable to accident, but it is bad for heart and nervous system.

Hours of work for policemen, engineers, truck drivers, chauffeurs, elevator operators, and the operatives of dangerous machinery, should be so arranged that their hours of greatest fatigue do not coincide with the hours of greatest fatigue of the public with whom they come in contact. It is unnecessary to argue this proposition—its truth is self-evident.

From a practical standpoint, it seems difficult to rearrange our social system so as to apply this idea, but the time will come when a matter so important will not be overlooked. As a matter of fact, safety campaigns are on all the time to impress the necessity for accident avoidance. In time all the factors of danger will be studied and correction will follow as a matter of course.

Answers to Health Queries

B. E. B. Q.—Will constipation cause a congestion of the head?

2.—Is there any remedy for broken veins?

A.—Yes; it is liable to affect the system in general. Watch the diet, drink plenty of water between meals and take regular outdoor exercise.

2.—If you have reference to varicose veins, bandaging during the day and keeping off the feet as much as possible should give relief.

Stuffed Baked Cucumber

Take a large ripe cucumber, and after paring, slice it into halves. Then remove the seeds. Make a savory stuffing of a small cupful of crumbs, a grated onion, a little chopped celery and pepper, salt, a tablespoonful of sugar, a teaspoonful of worcestershire sauce, a tablespoonful of catsup, a tablespoonful of soft butter, and the yolk of a small egg. Mix well and after buttering the inside of the cucumbers, stuff with the stuffing. Sprinkle with a little grated cheese, place on a buttered baking dish and bake until the cucumber is cooked tender and the top lightly browned. Serve with a smooth tomato sauce well seasoned and not too thick.

A Sensible Girl

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a girl of 17 and people say I have good sense. I have a married sister, and, although she is 28, she is very attractive because she looks 19 or 20. Now here is our trouble. She runs around a lot, leading a very nice married man on, too. We know that her heart isn't with him, but her enjoyment is to play with fire. He is a few years younger than she, and he sure does love her. We tell her and warn her about running around, but she pays no heed. Worst of all, she is a mother, with two lovely children. Please tell me and my mother what we can do. Thanking you for your space.

A SENSIBLE GIRL.

Can't you plead with your sister for her children's sake? Surely a mother couldn't be entirely indifferent to their future, and if her reputation is soiled it will reflect on her children and their future.

Billy

DEAR MISS GALE:

Your advice has been so wonderful that now I am writing to you for some. A certain boy (whom I've known for six or seven months) told me he loved me. I laughed at him and told him he was silly. Now this boy thinks that I don't care for him, but, oh, Miss Gale, I love him dearly. Would you please tell me what is the correct thing to say how can I get this boy to know I like him without inviting him to my home? BILLY.

You can be friendly when you see him and he will soon know that you like him. But why not invite him to your home?

Woman Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Denver, Colo.—"I have taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and will take more. I am taking it as a tonic to help me through the Change of Life and I am telling many of my friends to take it as I found nothing before this to help me. I had so many bad feelings at night that I could not sleep and for two years I could not go down town because I was afraid of falling. My mother took the Vegetable Compound years ago with good results and now I am taking it during the Change of Life and recommend it."—Mrs. T. A. Miller, 1611 Adams Street, Denver, Colorado.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who likes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Wrinkles Spring from Cold Heart, Crinkles from Warm One—Fay King

By FAY KING

SOME women are always searching for wrinkles, like a Scotland Yard detective.

They are so afraid of getting lines they never enjoy a hearty laugh or a good cry.

They seem to forget that there are lines AND lines!

Wrinkles are bad lines!

Wrinkles register deep and hard from unbecoming thoughts.

They thrive on jealousy, envy, greed, selfish schemes and cold calculations.

But crinkles are the happy little ripples that come like dancing waves in sunlight. They are the sparkle of joyous, cordial, sympathetic thinking.

Don't rub out the crinkles. They are the little recipes of good fellowship.

They do not mar your face—they ornament it!

BLUFFITES PLAY IN STADIUM

Probable Lineup

DUQUESNE.		THIEL.
Czinki	L. E.	Bliston
Kirby	L. T.	Costan
Kelleher	L. G.	Reimold
Silverstein	C.	Laitmore
Clarke	R. G.	Leonard

Officials—Referee, H. Lambie; umpire, E. Cavanaugh; head linesman, H. Dewar. Times of game—2:30.

DUQUESNE UNIVERSITY has the local football limelight all to itself today, with both Pitt and Carnegie Tech invading the middle west for important intersectional battles, respectively, with Nebraska and Notre Dame, and the Bluffites, playing Thiel in the Stadium, are hoping for a liberal patronage of the public. With a victory over Wash-Jeff to its credit and all other games with the exception of that with Geneva on the right side of the ledger, the Dukes are primed to hand Coach Tommy Holleran's Lutherans their third defeat of the season in Pittsburgh.

BERKMAN REAL STAR

Thiel opened the season by giving Pitt a hard battle in the Stadium, the score being 6-0 until the fourth period, when the Panthers made two more touchdowns. Later, in a battle with Carnegie Tech at Forbes Field, Thiel scored two touchdowns, but lost 45 to 13, the visitors' captain, Stanley Berkman, accounting for the points with his forward passing skill. He is one of the stars of the tri-state district and is expected to give the Dukes their share of trouble today.

Kickoff will be at 2 o'clock and popular prices, with a $2 top, are being charged. The game originally was scheduled for Thiel's field at Greenville, Pa., but was transferred here to fill the void left by the absence of both Pitt and Tech from the city on the same day.

The Duquesne Alumni Association is to present Red and Blue blankets to the members of the Bluff squad just before the kickoff. The presentations will be made by Frank C. Maher, president of the association. The association also plans to fete the Bluffites at a testimonial banquet, probably on December 11, and plans for this event will be advanced at a luncheon meeting of Duquesne alumni at the Hotel Henry at 1 o'clock.

"TRAVELING DAY"

This is "traveling day" not only for Pitt and Tech, but also for virtually every other major eleven in the tri-state district. W. & J. plays Bucknell College at Johnstown, Pa., State goes to Easton, Pa., to tangle with Herb McCracken's Lafayette Leopards, West Virginia University meets Georgetown at Washington, D. C., Grove City hooks up with Villanova in the latter's stadium on the outskirts of Philadelphia, Geneva also is in Philadelphia for a tussle with Temple College in the latter's fine new stadium, West Virginia Wesleyan plays Davis and Elkins at Elkins, W. Va.; Bethany goes to Huntington, W. Va., to oppose Marshall College and Waynesburg meets Westminster at New Wilmington, Pa. St. Vincent College plays the West Virginia University freshmen at Latrobe, the Pitt Freshmen engage the Penn State Freshmen at State College, the W. and J. Freshmen battle Bellefonte Academy at Bellefonte, Pa., and Kiski hooks up with the Navy Plebes at Annapolis.

BIG TEN TITLE AT STAKE

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—With the unchallenged lead, perhaps the championship, hinging on the result Iowa, alone undefeated and untied, will battle Wisconsin, undefeated but tied, at Iowa City today in the ranking game of the Western Conference schedule.

The contest overshadows other games involving Conference teams —Illinois-Chicago at Stagg Field, Northwestern-Indiana at Bloomington, Michigan-Michigan State at Ann Arbor, Haskell-Minnesota at Minneapolis, Wabash-Purdue at Lafayette, and Ohio State-Muskingum at Columbus.

There will be other hurdles to leap for the winner of the Iowa-Wisconsin combat, but the team that emerges victorious will be favored to capture the 1928 championship of the Big Ten. Iowa, if triumphant, must knock Michigan over a week hence in the final game of the season while Wisconsin will have to conquer Minnesota.

The game promises to be a battle involving terrific line plunging matched against a deceptive overhead game.

Joe Glick Beats Gans in Gotham

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Joe Glick, of Brooklyn, took a 10-round decision from Baby Joe Gans, of California, before a $60,000 house in Madison Square Garden last night. Each weighed 134½ pounds.

Gorilla Jones, Akron, O., won the decision over Pal Suverson, of New York, in an eight-round preliminary. Jones started strong, flooring Silvers for the seven count in the first round and held the upper hand throughout.

NOTRE DAME BANKS ON THESE STARS :-: TO STOP TARTANS TODAY

Cyril Letzelter

CAPT. FRED MILLER

When Carnegie Tech's undefeated gridders attempt to advance the ball against Notre Dame at South Bend today, it will be Capt. Fred Miller, giant tackle, who will direct the defense, and when the Irish assume the attack, it probably will be Miller who will open the biggest holes in the Tartan forward wall. Miller is regarded as one of the best linemen in the mid-West. You can call Miller a "million dollar" lineman without exaggerating, for he is one of the few millionaires indulging in the gridiron sport.

JOHN NIEMIEC

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Skibo Defense Taxed. Facing Aerial Threat. Pitt's Job Also Hard.

Dukes Must Hustle. Trick of Hidden Ball. Solution by Crowley.

EVEN CHANCE FOR PANTHER-PLAID

CARNEGIE TECH'S chances for victory or a tie in today's big game with Notre Dame at South Bend probably will depend largely upon the extent to which the Skibos have improved their defense against forward passes.

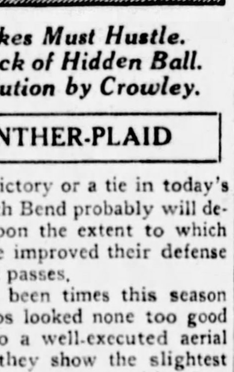
There have been times this season when the Skibos looked none too good in opposition to a well-executed aerial attack, and if they show the slightest weakness in that department this afternoon it may be taken for granted that Knute Rockne will use the overhead style of play as one of his main offensive weapons.

THOUGH it was by means of a forward pass that the Fighting Irish scored their winning touchdown against the Army a week ago they did not resort to as many flings as usual in that game. When facing an opponent that is at all weak on that play, however, Rockne never fails to use it to the limit, and, as his passing system has for years been one of the best in the country, it will behoove the Skibos to show a better defense against forwards this afternoon than they have displayed on some occasions in their meetings with other teams.

Carnegie supporters find hope in the fact that Wally Steffen and Bob Waddell are coaches who rarely overlook any bets. The Plaid mentors realize more fully than any one else just what they will be up against in South Bend, and it is pretty safe to surmise that their preparatory activities for this game have been directed largely toward improving the Plaid defense against an attack launched through the air.

WITH that detail attended to, there is no good reason why the Schenley Park gridders should not be conceded to have at least an even chance to win or draw in South Bend, as otherwise the Plaid eleven does not suffer by comparison with the conquerors of the Army. On the form he has shown this season since he was converted into a halfback, Cyril Letzelter ought to prove a satisfactory replacement for the injured Thayer Flanagan, and, as all of the other regulars are in good shape, the team as a whole will be very close to its best when it takes the field.

The fact that Notre Dame has not lost a game on its own field since 1905 does not count for a great deal on this occasion, for it must be borne in mind that during the elapsed 23 years South Bend teams have not met at home many opponents of the caliber of the Carnegie outfit of 1928. Besides, the Skibos did not have to give as much in defeating Georgetown last Saturday as Notre Dame was required to spend in downing the Army. That's another item that may count in favor of the Plaid.



Andy Guarino

OUT in Lincoln, the Pitt team also has an uncommonly tough argument on its hands for today. There are few harder jobs than beating the Nebraska giants on their own gridiron, but, by the same token, trimming one of Dr. Sutherland's November elevens is never any part of a joyride, either. As in the case of Carnegie at South Bend, there is everything to warrant the confidence that the Panthers will come pretty close to being equal

BUCKNELL BATTLES PREXIES

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 17.—For the second time in three years Wash-Jeff football fans are today wending their way to Johnstown to see the Presidents in action. In 1926 the Red and Black defeated a high-class Carnegie Tech eleven in a game that still lives in the memories of those who witnessed the combat. Both Wash-Jeff and Carnegie entered that combat with unsullied records and the defeat implanted a permanent smirch on the Tartan banner.

This year, the Presidents will play the Bisons of Bucknell University under conditions that are far different from those which prevailed in the contest two years ago.

Both Wash-Jeff and Bucknell have met with reversals and ties and neither has a chance of any sort of championship in this district, state or nation. Neither stands near the top of the football heap as they did a year ago and the only thing at stake will be individual supremacy for which they will be contending.

CLOSE BATTLE

But the contest, it is believed here, is likely to prove one of the closest and most interesting in the district. On paper, at least, the rivals from opposite ends of the state appear to be evenly matched. If both are able to show the best

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17.—(INS.)—Billy Evans, business manager of the Cleveland Indians, was in San Francisco today conferring with the owners of the San Francisco Seals. HONOLULU, T. H., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Miss Helen Wills, tennis queen, proved too much for three former Hawaiian men champions in exhibition play here yesterday.

Miss Wills defeated Atherton Richards in two sets, 7-5, 7-5, then paired with Richards to defeat William Hoggs and William Ecklund in a doubles set, 9-7.

JACK CHEVIGNY

One of the best interferers in the Notre Dame backfield is Jack Chevigny, right halfback. He also is a consistent ground gainer when carrying the ball. Jack played a prominent role in the South Bender's triumph over the Army, and it is probable that he will give the Skibos plenty of trouble.

Westinghouse Cops Section I Title

WESTINGHOUSE HIGH SCHOOL won its second consecutive Section 1, City League, grid championship yesterday when it nosed out Schenley's strong contender, 6 to 0. The lone touchdown of the game came in the fourth quarter when Ormiston let the ball slip through his hands while crashing the Bellefielders' line near the goal, and Ware fell upon it over the goal line.

Although the game was close throughout, the Silver Lakers had the edge most of the way. Westinghouse will now play South Hills, Section 2 victor, for the city championship.

In other City League games, Perry defeated Carrick, 13 to 7; Allegheny and Oliver, playing for the Section 2 runner-up position, tied at 6-all, and Peabody walloped Fifth avenue, 32 to 0. The lineups:

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 17.—Two well-matched elevens await the starting signal for the Carnegie Tech-Notre Dame football battle at Cartier Field here this afternoon. So closely are they regarded in the matter of ability that the betting is strictly even. There is no giving of odds or points one way or the other and Notre Dame has not been beaten on its home field in 23 years. So much do the rivals respect each other that neither squad was permitted to spend the night in South Bend.

For the first time in history on the eve of a home game, Coach Knute Rockne of the Irish took his players out of the city to keep them away from excitement and help them to maintain their morale at the highest pitch. The locals were quartered at a hotel in Niles, Mich., 12 miles from here, until this morning, while Carnegie Tech stopped at the Elkhart Hotel in Elkhart, 16 miles from South Bend, coming over at noon today. From the lips of Coach Rockne came the words:

WILL BE FIGHT

"One of the few serious mistakes of my coaching career was made when I underrated Tech two years ago and remained away from the battle and took a 19-0 defeat as a reward. Never again will I underrate any eleven coached by my friend, Walter Steffen, the Carnegie chief. We are prepared to face our hardest test of the season in this Tech engagement, and we believe we are ready for it. It will be a fight."

Advisory Coach Steffen and Head Coach Bob Waddell, both were hopeful, but not enthusiastic about their chances.

"We will have to play our best football of the season to win," Waddell said. "The form we flashed against Pitt and Georgetown will not be good enough. We will have to rise to supreme heights. The players are ready, however, and if they play as well as they are able to, we will win. If not, it will be just another Notre Dame victory."

Steffen said: "Inexperience may defeat us. We have seven sophomore players on our team, and there is no telling how they may act under heavy fire. We are hoping for the best, with Howard Harpster pulling the strings, as he has in other games so far, we may come through."

It appears it is possible to crowd some 34,000 souls into Cartier Field, and just that many will be on hand when the whistle blows, regardless of weather conditions. All of the tickets are sold and only death or some great catastrophe can keep away the lucky pasteboard holders. Rain greeted the Techites when they awoke in Elkhart yesterday morning and continued throughout the day and into the night, and the forecast was for continuous rain today. Even if the downpour ceases, the going will be heavy, which may or may not work to Tech's advantage. The Tartans have two modes

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 17.—At its back the hopes and prayers of all the East and in its path the staunch and primed hosts of the University of Nebraska, Pitt's Golden Panthers is prepared today to claw its way either to fame and glory or to die valiantly in the mud of the mid-western prairie, acknowledging the superiority of the greatest eleven in Cornhusker history.

It will take a great eleven to beat back the threat that is embodied in the Panther team this day. Arriving here this morning from Omaha, where they spent yesterday, the Pitt warriors presented a grim and determined front. Outweighed, outreserved and ready to enter the battle with the actual odds of 2½ to 1 against them, the Pitt players have fought off well the spirit of inferiority with which western folk have attempted to inoculate them.

HOLD PEP MEETING

Lincoln is ready for Pitt—has been ready, in fact, since a certain November afternoon a year ago, when something happened to Husker prestige back in Pittsburgh. Coach Sutherland refused to bring his team to this city until today. The local boys held a big torchlight parade last night, and crowds of Husker rooters surrounded the Cornhusker hotel where the Panther host is quartered, prior to the game this morning.

The game is expected to be a sell-out, a crowd of 40,000 being looked for—rain or no rain. And if you think it isn't raining here—you should see your correspondent's derby, and the rain—curses on old Jup, Pluv—is the factor that is going to injure Pitt today.

Today is only the fourth time in history that Pitt has invaded the West. Twice Pittsburgh elevens

RIVALS MEET IN EAST

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Football in the East today will run the scale from ancient rivalries to intersectional conflicts. Princeton and Yale will draw the largest gate of the day. If it were in order to make a book on a college football game, which it is not, the Princeton-Yale game might be classified at 5 to 4 and "write your own ticket."

Amherst and Williams have been meeting on football fields for more than two score years. There was a point difference last year in favor of the followers of Lord Jeffrey, but Williams seems to be more superior today.

Dartmouth swamped Cornell last November, but the Red cannot be considered worse than even with the Green as another year's hostilities roll around.

Penn and Columbia is another engagement which should be closer than the last year, when Penn won 22 to 3. Syracuse and Colgate tied in 1927, and today's game may be as close.

Two New York teams will be rallied on to repulse boarders from the West, Detroit meeting Fordham, while New York University tries conclusions with Missouri.

Brown is a favorite to stop New Hampshire, Holy Cross is given only an outside chance against Harvard, and Boston College's record should remain intact against Canisius.

PIRATE ICEMEN HEAD WEST TONIGHT

HOCKEY GAMES TONIGHT.
Chicago at Montreal.
Les Canadiens at Toronto.
Boston at Ottawa.

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Manager Odie Cleghorn and his Pirate icemen will leave for Detroit tonight to meet the Cougars in a National League fray tomorrow evening. The Pirates met the Detroiters in the Pittsburgh opener last season and went down to defeat by the overwhelming margin of 6-0, but the Bucs showed great power in the battle with Boston here Thursday, and it is not likely that the Cougars will find the new-model Pirates any push-over.

Mickey MacKay, forward, who joined the local squad on Thursday, will accompany the Blue and Gold warriors to the Michigan city. Mickey still is bothered with an abscess under his arm, but he hopes to be able to play for at least one period of the battle. None of the Bucs suffered injury in the gruelling fray with the Bruins, and the 1-0 setback which they suffered served only to whet their victory appetites.

Detroit set the pace for the entire league throughout the first half of last season, and the same players that enabled the Cougars to turn this trick are back in the fold. They were compelled to submit to a 2-0 defeat at the hands of the champion Rangers in their opener Thursday, and they probably are just as eager for victory as are the Pirates.

The Bucs will move on to Chicago on Tuesday, and on Thursday they will return to Duquesne Garden to meet the colorful Les Canadiens.

DEMARCO LOSES IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, Nov. 17.—Red Mason is up to his old tricks again to give the fight fans a thrill. Red brought Cuddy DeMarco to Columbus last night to match wits against Red Mahan, the Mexican mute, managed by Fred Windsor. Mahan had the better of the fight for the first five rounds, but DeMarco opened up in the sixth and began to batter the mute around the ring—in the ninth the fireworks started. Both fighters rushed from their corners and Mahan had Cuddy in a bad way. DeMarco, after receiving a terrific right, fell to the floor and attempted to turn over backwards, but got tangled up in the ropes, and fell out of the ring.

He crawled back before the count had reached seven and both boys started to slug. Mason was furious, probably because the crowd was in an uproar as the boys began to lambast each other, and he walked all around the ring, over to the timekeeper and demanded just how long the round should last.

Many ringsiders believe the timekeeper, a spry young fellow of just 78 years, had fallen asleep and forgot to ring the bell at the end of the regulation three minutes.

Red was in a rage, and, egged on by some loyal Pittsburgh rooters, promptly banged the bell with the water bottle. The crowd and even the referee and Mahan's manager, Windsor, thought it a good joke, and just laughed it off. However, Red woke up the timekeeper by banging the bell and he started to protest, but Red promptly shut him up. The next round found Cuddy staging a comeback which just fell short of winning the decision.

CARNEGIE SET

of lightning attack to stop. One is the famous Notre Dame running game and the other the brilliant passing display.

Today's game is the sixth between the keen rivals, and Tech has made a remarkable showing in the others. The first clash was staged at Forbes Field in 1922 and saw Notre Dame win 19 to 0. In 1923, the Irish won again, 28 to 0. In 1924, Tech got off to a great start and achieved a 13-13 tie in the first half, but bowed before a crushing comeback by Notre Dame in the second half, 4 to 19. In 1925 Tech lost here, 26 to 0, but the following season saw the Tartans plaster the Irish, 19-0, at Forbes Field in an upset that reverberated throughout the football world and checked a Notre Dame bid for the national championship.

OUT FOR REVENGE

The teams did not play each other last year, and Coach Rockne has been spoiling ever since to obtain revenge for that terrible trimming. Today, when he makes his big attempt to get even, it will be against a green, but husky fighting young eleven that has been undefeated so far, while his own team has lost to Wisconsin, 22-6, and to Georgia Tech, 13-9, but has come back to defeat Navy, Drake, Penn State and the powerful Army eleven. The triumph over the Army last Saturday was one of the crowning form reversals of the current season.

Rockne is not alone in seeking revenge. In the starting Notre Dame lineup today will be two men who were regulars in that 19-0 defeat two years ago, Capt. Miller, the left end role and Niemiec, the halfback, while Collins and Voze, the ends; Leppig and Law, the guards; Moynihan, the center, and Chevigny, the other halfback, were members of the second team that took the field at the start of that battle. Twomey, right tackle; Brady, quarterback, and A. Collins, fullback, are the only regulars of today who did not have a part in that disastrous setback of two years ago. Of the Tech players who figured in the 1926 battle, only four will be in the game tomorrow. They are Capt. Harpster, the quarterback; Letzelter, halfback, Sweet, end, and Mielziner, center. Harpster kicked two field goals and Letzelter scored one of the two touchdowns, with Bill Donohoe making the other. With the exception of a change in the halfbacks, Tech will take the field the same as in the Georgetown game a week ago. Thayer Flanagan has a torn muscle in his right leg and will not be able to play. Letzelter starting at left half, Eyth will get the call at right halfback, where Mourehead started last week, but they are two flashy runners who will alternate during the game. Tech held a light workout on the Elkhart school field yesterday afternoon, going through its paces in the rain for the better part of an hour. Coach Steffen was on hand for this drill.

Kickoff today will be at 2 o'clock. Three of the officials will be Eastern men; they are Wilmer Crowell, of Swarthmore, referee; Dex Very, of Penn State, field judge, and D. Hedges, of Dartmouth, umpire. Al Lipp of Chicago is the linesman.

to their task. The great Pitt line has proved superior to other opposing forward walls that outweighed it by many pounds, and it is by no means improbable that it will show to the same good advantage against the huge Westerners.

THE Blue and Gold will have an edge at the ends, on the fine form that Joe Donchess and Andy Guarino have displayed in practically every previous game, and possibly Nebraska will find in Toby Uansa and Josh Williams a pair of halfbacks harder to stop than any that they have encountered this fall in rolling up a perfect record against Iowa State, Montana State, Syracuse, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma.

Syracuse not only held the Cornhuskers to a 7-to-6 score, but actually outplayed them during the greater part of the game, and in view of what Pitt did to the Orange two weeks later there appears to be a good chance for a Panther victory today.

THE prominence of the Yale-Princeton game on the East's major football card for this afternoon is traditional rather than due to any remarkable showing on the part of either team this season. Yale has been beaten by the Army and Maryland, and Princeton has been tied by Ohio State and Virginia.

The dope indicates a slight edge for Princeton, but the fact must be borne in mind that no matter how the Elis may fare against other opponents during the course of a season they are a different team when they face the Tigers and are never really at their peak until the date of that game.

Stan Berkman

PITTSBURGH is not left without a worth-while football attraction today, in spite of the absence of the Panthers and Skibos. For the Dukes and Thiel promise plenty of entertainment for the home fans in their game at the Stadium, advance signs giving promise that the affair will be a real battle from start to finish. The main job of Elmer Layden's players will be to stop Stan Berkman, in whom Thiel has one of the best backfield performers in this region. If they can get away with that job, they are likely to win, but the margin separating the rivals at the end is not likely to be very wide.

SPEAKING of enduring sport figures, Norval Baptie, who gave an exhibition of fancy skating with Gladys Lamb between hockey periods at Duquesne Garden Thursday night, must not be overlooked. Baptie has passed the fiftieth milestone, but is still an artist on the steel blades.

Baptie was a speed-skating star three decades ago, in the days of Johnny Nilsson, John S. Johnson, Joe Donoghue and other top-liners who appeared here. On March 10, 1906, Norval set a new record of 1 minute 18 1-5 seconds at Duquesne Garden for a half-mile indoors, and on March 1, 1907, he came back and created a mark of 38 1-5 seconds for a quarter-mile.

HORACE S. FOGEL, former President of the Phillies and at an earlier stage of his career manager of the Giants, who died in Philadelphia Thursday, was one of the game's best known characters during his baseball days.

Fogel was appointed manager of the Giants in 1902 after George Davis had jumped to the American League, but the club made such a poor showing that he was dropped soon in favor of George Smith. While at the head of the Giants, Fogel put into practice some novel ideas for the running of the club, the most unique of which was an attempt to make a first baseman of Christy Mathewson, who, Horace decided, would never be a successful pitcher.

Charley Crowley

CHARLEY CROWLEY, head football coach at Columbia, gave his squad special instructions during the week with a view to breaking up Penn's hidden-ball attack in today's game at Philadelphia. "Play your position," was Crowley's order to each man, and then related the history of the hidden-ball trick, which was originated by the late Percy D. Haughton at Harvard more than 20 years ago. Prior to the invention of the play, the Columbia coach explained, the man who took the ball from the center was known to every player on the defending side, consequently it was possible for a defensive man to leave his position if the play was not coming through him and head for the ball-carrier. This meant that linemen could slide along the line of scrimmage and concentrate their strength upon the point of attack.

HAUGHTON, by concealing the identity of the ball-carrier, succeeded in weakening the enemy's defense through takes that drew the opposing players away from their positions. This made it easy for his backs to crash through with comparatively little interference.

For season after season, Harvard completely baffled its opponents until a rival coach found a solution that eventually checkmated the hidden-ball attack. That was to have every man play his own position until it was definitely determined who had the ball. Crowley hopes to stop Penn by that method today.

Kiski Eleven Meets Midshipmen Today

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 17. — To the boys of the Kiski football team, this season's schedule is beginning to look as though this were a war. Today, amid all the pomp and parade and glory of a Naval Academy holiday, they will meet the Navy freshmen here. Just 10 days ago, at West Point, with row upon row of Army uniforms surrounding them, they battled the other branch of Uncle Sam's military service.

they have the contest may prove as interesting as the game played a year ago at Lewisburg, which Wash-Jeff won.

The Presidents will present practically the same teams they employed at the start of the game a week ago with Pittsburgh. It is possible that Edwards, held out of that game on account of an injury, may start in place of Paul Jones at left halfback, but this is not at all certain as the former California Normal star is not yet in as good shape as desired. Two or three other players of note are also still crippled, including Capt. Ascuman, but all will be ready to start the game.

ROVERS MEET PITTSBURGH TODAY

TODAY'S GAMES.

District League—
Pittsburgh at Pittsburgh Rovers.
Celtics at Swissvale.
Twin Boro at Clan Douglas (Homewood).
Scholastic League—
Thistles at Smillers.
Castle Shannon at Roger Cubs.
Westinghouse at Langley.
Beaver Valley League—
New Brighton at Harmony.
American Bridge at Ambridge.

With three well-balanced games carded for this afternoon, local soccerites following the fortunes of the District League have some real entertainment ahead of them. The Pittsburgh Soccer Club will tackle the Pittsburgh Rovers at Leslie Park, and the leadership of the league hinges upon the outcome of this game.

Then keeping in the good games class, the Pittsburgh Celtics will invade Swissvale to meet the Union Switch and Signal, and since the Pittsburgh defeat Jack Thomas has been driving the boys hard. The Celtics have lost some of the punch that made them famous, and the Strip aggregation will fight hard.

The third game of the District League will bring to the Homewood Playgrounds the Twin Boros club. This will be the first appearance of the new club in the East End, and the fans should turn out to greet them.

In the Scholastic League, the Smillers meet Raybrook, Roger Cubs meet Castle Shannon, and the Langley Old Boys tangle with Westinghouse at Grayber Field. In the Beaver Valley League, Harmony meets New Brighton, and the Ambridge Independents put on the local act in meeting the American Bridge eleven.

MAXIE STRUB WINS

ERIE, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Maxie Strub, Erie, outpointed Angie Pisano, Brooklyn, in a 10-round bout here last night. Johnny Plat, Greenville, was awarded a decision over Joe Feldman, Cleveland, in six rounds, and Tommy Malco, Pittsburgh, and Joe Corelli, Erie, fought a six-round draw. Nick Severo, Meadville, outpointed Young Meyers, Erie, in four.

FOUR OUT AFTER BUC OUTFIELD POSITION

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

THREE fast-steppers and another gent with a sock at the plate are lively candidates for the uncertain outfield position on the Pirate club of 1929.

Adam Comorosky, George Grantham, Fred Brickell and Clyde Farnhart make up a quartet that doesn't know what selections it will sing when the next big show goes on.

Taking for granted that Paul and Lloyd Waner are sure shots for two pasture patrols, Manager Bush will have to get his third guardian from among the four mentioned, unless the cold months produce more athletes.

WHAT OF GRANTHAM?

The acquisition by the Buccos of Earl Sheeley probably means that George Grantham will not have much use for a first-base glove next spring.

Boots is likely to bring along a finger mitt, but he won't be asked to show his wares in the infield, in view of the stormy time he put in while he played the keystone sack for the Cubs and Pirates.

Grantham played cleverly at second at times, but on the whole his bosses believed he was a bit out of place. So over to the gateway he went for the Buccos, but still there is something to be desired in his actions.

Tried as an outfielder in the spring a few seasons back, Grantham displayed cleverness. It may be that his ability to hit and run, coupled with his natural defensive skill will win him the extra berth.

Grantham's finish in the past year was not at all pleasing to Bush. George's play lagged in the closing weeks. He probably would have to convince his manager that he can stand the grind before he is awarded a regular position.

COMOROSKY STRONG

Comorosky may be the third member of the outfield patrol when the next campaign gets under way. The Polish Flyer loves the game and he doesn't seem to have a weakness.

Brickell is a dangerous contender on any man's club owing to his speed, punch and all-around promise. Brick, however, is not as sure on defense as Commy.

Barnhart's future with the Pirates is a matter of doubt. But if he's with the club you may be sure of seeing some of Pooch's wallops playing tag with the fences.

It is probable that in the event of Comorosky winning a berth in the outfield Lloyd Waner will move over to leftfield. Manager Bush used Commy in the middle garden in the closing weeks of last year and the plan worked out pretty well.

Grantham would hardly do as a centerfielder; he was impressive in the exhibition games he played with the Pirates in right field.

Provided the Arizona speedboy moves to the second defense, the Buccos will sport an outfield distinctly lefthanded at the plate. And this might not work out so well with a southpaw serving the ball to the Pittsburgh hitters.

WRESTLERS MATCHED

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Two contenders for the world heavyweight wrestling championship, John Pesek, the "Nebraska Tiger," and George Calza, Italian titleholder, have been signed for a match at the Chicago Coliseum, November 26.

ELKS STAGE MITT SHOW

Pittsburgh Lodge No. 11, Elks, staged their third amateur boxing show last night. Six bouts were fought between Pittsburgh's best amateurs.

Paul Balint, of the North Side A. C. scored the only knockout of the show when he sent George Lesko, of the Duke O'Hara Club to the canvas after 45 seconds of fighting. Johnny Warner, of Clairton, received the verdict over Tony Marino of the Duke O'Hara Club in four rounds.

George (Slip) Lehr, of the North Side, had to fight a tough battle to win from Eddie Hebner, of Clairton. Lehr won after four rounds of fighting.

Todd Murphy, of the Duke O'Hara Club, and Frank Flack, of the Willow Club staged a fast four-round fight, with Murphy winning after four rounds. Jimmy Bloz, of the Duke O'Hara Club won the opening bout from George Spine, of the North Side A. C. in four rounds.

Steve Bizzy, of the Willow A. C. and Mickey Gracin, of the North Side A. C. struggled through three rounds. Referee Lewis stopped the fight in the third round, as Gracin was all in, due to his holding and clinching so much.

PITT READY

have swept to the coast and last year the unbeaten Panthers punched out a 32-0 victory over Drake University at Des Moines, Ia. Nebraska and Pitt have met twice before, the Huskers winning a 10-0 verdict in Pittsburgh in 1922 and Pitt evening the count last fall by whipping another powerful, but poorly drilled Cornhusker team at the stadium, 21 to 13.

The Panthers are facing an unbeaten eleven, Syracuse, Missouri and Oklahoma, all well regarded, have fallen before the power of the Huskers, although the Orange outplayed the local collegians, dropping a disappointing 7-6 verdict here. Pitt, you know, later walloped Lou Andres' men, 18 to 6.

For all their air of honest bravado the Pitt men realize the enormity of the task that is theirs today. They know that they must spot Nebraska better than 15 pounds to the man. They realize that the hefty Crimson clad lads are fighting on their own soil, desperately anxious to retrieve the prestige they lost in Pittsburgh a year back. With the chances of an unbeaten season in their very grasp, together with the fact that such a season will cut its own figure of no little extent in winning for them national championship rating, the Huskers must be accorded the lion's share of the not inconsiderable psychological advantage.

PITT WELL DRILLED

On the other hand, Pitt is presenting for the edification of local fans one of the best drilled and smartest elevens in the East. A team that has come from the shades of mediocrecy to a place very close to the top since the advent of the present month—Pitt's own month. Look back, will you, and see how often Pitt teams have been beaten in November—no matter what the odds might have been against them.

The Pitt line, with Donchess and Guarino, as ends; Fine Mike Getto and Fighting Charley Tully at the tackles; Capt. Alex Fox and Toby Dimelo at the guards, and the scrappy, peppery and alert Monty Montgomery at center, is a dangerous weapon, equally vicious both at offensive and defensive play. Syracuse, which gained consistently through the Husker line, was unable to make a single first down by running the ball against Pitt and gained but 8 yards during the entire afternoon through line plays.

Were the day a promising one and the gridiron dry, I would say the existing odds are entirely out of proportion. But it rained all day yesterday and has been drizzling all morning. The gridiron, for all its grass protection, is bound to be treacherous—and a treacherous grid is a big handicap to the light Blue and Gold backs. Williams and Uansa will find it extremely difficult to get away on the well timed and deceptive reverse plays and the powerful triple pass.

There is little to fear so far as the Pitt secondary defensive play is concerned. I imagine Dr. Sutherland will play a seven-man line today, with Tom Parkinson backing it up. Edwards and Williams at the defensive half back positions, and Toby Uansa back at the safety post.

HOWELL IS STAR

Blue Howell, co-captain, along with Hoehn, of the Husker team, is the kingpin of the Husker attack. He is a fine line plunger—fast and compact as he drives through. Most of the Nebraska plays are directed at or inside the tackles or through the center of the line. Sloan Farley and Russell, his running mates, are not to be discounted as ball carriers, although they are not in a class with Howell.

The Pitt trip is as come off without a hitch. Under the very considerate and efficient guidance of Messrs. McAdoo and Decker of the P. R. R., the boys and the entire Pitt party have been well cared for. Routed via the Pennsy to Chicago and from there to Omaha over the famous C. B. & Q., the team came on here this morning over the Burlington, leaving Omaha at 9 o'clock and dropping off an hour or so later. The squad is due to depart for Chicago immediately after the game, arriving there early Sunday morning and will be back in Pittsburgh some time near midnight.

TECH HARRIERS WIN

Carnegie Tech freshmen harriers defeated Shady Side Academy in the annual cross country run yesterday at the Academy. The score was 17-38, and the first 10 runners to finish were Lord, Carnegie; Price, Carnegie; Neenan, Carnegie; Riviere, Shady Side; Carr, Carnegie; Krebs, Carnegie; Shaw, Shady Side; Dauber, Shady Side; Bittner, Shady side; Davis, Shady Side. Time, 20:35.

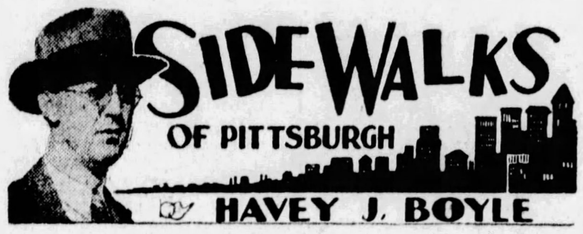
Braddock Police Arrest Three Robbing Store



A DORMONT reader objects in a letter to an alleged interview Sidewalks had with Bill Wyman. Since the reader lets the writer off easily, but thinks Mr. Wyman really mentioned his theaters it is only fair to say that we made up the brief interview with an idea that everyone would know it was a made-up interview. Of course, Mr. Wyman never mentioned anything about his theaters. The letter indicated we placed Mr. Wyman in a bad light. Consequently we are anxious to clear the innocent and, as the guilty party, we hereby take all blame. Our slight sense of humor is not always a good guide.

be strange if it was foxy old Bill Wyman who had written the letter objecting to our giving publicity to his theaters in this column?"

But inasmuch as the letter-writer indicated she thinks this is a pretty good column we banish that idea. Mr. Wyman doesn't think so much of it, we are obliged to say. He is one of our severest critics and best pals, to recall Merton of the Movies.

SO MANY Pittsburghers have reported how they listened regularly to KWKH, a radio broadcasting station operated by Col. W. K. Henderson, that we believe all radio fans should be let in on it. It will be difficult to find since the recent changes in wavelengths. Too tough for us, at any rate. We are thinking about putting a want ad in for WCAE. Col. Henderson, by the way, was at his best in the recent political unpleasantness.

And speaking of radio, Pat Barnes, former Sharon youth, has moved from WHT to the Chicago Tribune station. He sends us a card.

Pat hails from Sharon, Pa. Many soldiers will remember him as the principal character in the A. E. F. play produced in France and called: "The Buck on Leave."

MILT CRANDALL, of dancing marathon fame, is back in town for a few days. His plans for the future are indefinite, but he expects to do some "promoting" this winter. Whatever he takes up he will take up in New York. Since his marathon dance he has done little but travel. A race track here, a race track there, Havana, New York, Montreal. Milt has been seeing the sights.

It is possible to disagree with Mr. Crandall in what constitutes sound entertainment, but it is difficult to disagree with the statement that he is one of the shrewdest showmen in America.

Sidewalks welcome home the Monessen boy who had some of the most noted newspapermen of the country writing columns about him and his personality a few months ago. But he won't stay long. His feet are itchy—but not his palms. A welcome to this local boy nearly always must include an "au revoir."

(The latter is a French term meaning Goodby. A fellow writing a column like this must be up on practically everything.)

We had a notion to drop into the Spanish and say "Adios," and only one difficulty presented itself. We don't know whether that means "Hello" or "Goodby." Our Spanish has always been confined to watching a man with a black sailor hat look unpleasantly at the lady with something or other in her hair as they dance the Fandango.

PARK BUS PERMIT ASKED

Council is considering a proposal to allow motor buses to use the roadways in Schenley Park to extend service to residents in the territory between Greenfield Avenue Bridge and Monitor street.

The request was submitted by John E. Born, building promoter, who explained that with extended bus service he could greatly increase the housing facilities in the area. Born said the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company was ready to establish new lines, but was held up by the opposition of the Department of Public Works to the use of the park.

On motion of President James F. Malone the law department was asked to advise Council whether buses were allowed to drive through the park and whether Council had authority to grant and refuse such permission.

The Department of Public Works was asked in a motion by W. Y. English for an opinion as to whether the roadways in the park were strong enough to carry the bus traffic.

DUQUESNE WILL BUILD SCHOOL

An addition costing $140,000 is to be added to the Duquesne High School.

Free Three Days, Sends 3 False Alarms

In the three days of liberty that James Fields, 13, Negro, of First avenue, Homestead, enjoyed since he escaped from Juvenile Court detention rooms, he stole $18 from his home and sounded three false fire alarms, police say. He fell down on his third false alarm when he pulled down the hook of box 238, at Forbes street and Coltart square. Police Lieut. Frank McNichols, who arrested the lad shortly after the arrival of the fire apparatus, said that the boy admitted sounding the three "fakes." He was returned to Juvenile Court.

FAMILY AWAY, ROB HOME

While Mrs. P. T. Leroux, of 520 South Linden avenue, Squirrel Hill, was taking a walk, burglars entered her home, ransacked the entire second floor and escaped with an old gold brooch valued at $30. Mrs. Leroux reported the robbery to the Squirrel Hill Police Station.

Another Squirrel Hill robbery was reported by Oliver W. Brown, of 2929 Shady avenue. He said burglars entered his home through the kitchen door, which he had ordered his nurse to leave open pending return of a maid. He reported the loss of $33 in cash.

ROBBER GANG BELIEVED BROKEN

A robbery that probably would have entailed hundreds of dollars' loss was nipped in the bud yesterday when Braddock police arrested three youths in the Peoples Store, 851 Braddock avenue, Braddock.

Those arrested are Larry Vojko, 15, of 1026 Cherry way, Mike Krenicky, 17, of 1021 River avenue and Joseph Powlouski, 17, 906 Talbot avenue, all of Braddock. They were captured by police after the store had been surrounded. After a sharp grilling by police the arrested youths implicated Edward Witkowski, 20, of 1112 Washington street, as being a member of the gang and police arrested him. All are being held without bail on suspicious person charges.

Police believe that with the arrest of the gang and some others known to have been associates of the arrested youths the gang which has been robbing in Braddock will have been apprehended.

The attempted robbery was discovered by Officer M. A. Lanahan of the Braddock force, who discovered shadows moving in the store as he made his rounds. He called the station for re-enforcements and the store was soon surrounded by police. Effecting an entrance the officers discovered the youths.

Merchandise consisting of dresses, coats, shoes, clothing, was piled on the floor ready to be taken out. The boys gained entrance to the store through a rear window after an iron protecting bar had been forced. According to police the men under arrest are alleged to have confessed to the robbery of the Kane Jewelry store last October 14, and the robbery of the Berger pawn shop after its destruction by fire a few weeks ago. The police are attempting to connect the prisoners with other robberies in the district in the last few weeks.

SAY HE WAS TARGET FOR SKILLET WANTS DIVORCE

Louis Dixon Hall, former professor in the University of Illinois and head of one of the bureaus of the Department of Agriculture, Washington, for a number of years, was attacked by his wife with a skillet and other kitchen utensils, he averred before Judge Elder W. Marshall, of Common Pleas Court, in giving reasons for wanting a divorce from Elizabeth W. Hall.

The libellant, who is the state manager of the Kansas City Life Insurance Company, with offices in the Columbia Bank Building, and who lives at Webster Hall, says he was married in 1900 and that his wife used abusive language and unjustly accused him of running around with other women. He also testified that while in Washington, she talked to his assistant in the Department of Agriculture and humiliated him. On one occasion she also accused him of putting poison in her medicine, which he denied.

His wife's conduct was such, he says, that he was compelled to leave her in 1923. Mrs. Hall is at present living in Arlington, Va. Some months ago Mrs. Hall made an attempt to have Hall extradited to Virginia, alleging that he had deserted her, but the case was dismissed by the court.

Will Rogers' Say

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 17.

Pardon a mere comedian for entering this sea controversy—but if I was going to South America and saw my boat wasn't going any too good I would swing over and keep in next to the coast line.

Course that's just a rough idea of mine and perhaps is not practical. I got the idea from some excellent air pilots that I have flown with.

When things don't look just right they go the long way round, and keep over territory where they have the best chance of landing in case it's necessary.

But that's why an airplane is safer than a ship, or a bus at a grade crossing.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

STOLEN LOVE

by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Joan Hastings, seventeen and beautiful, lives with two old maiden aunts and one of them, Aunt Evvie, tells her of her unmarried mother's tragic love affair and death. Joan falls in love with Bill Martin, a penniless young man, and she is sent away to school. Bill, an innocent victim of a bootlegging gang, is sent to jail and Joan, begging for bail money from the aunts, confesses everything to them. She is put on a train for school in charge of a woman friend of Aunt Evvie's. Bill, freed, bids goodby to his mother, leaving no address. Joan, escaping from the train, reaches his home just after he has gone. Concealing her presence from her aunts she gets a position in a department store and later works as a model in a smart shop. There Mrs. Barstow, a rich society woman, sees her and asks her to tea. She meets Curtis Barstow, who immediately becomes interested in her. Bill comes home and discovers Joan is close at hand. He visits her and offers to marry her. Later he disappears after having an argument with his employer. Joan becomes engaged to Curtis. Joan constantly thinks of Bill and plans to break her engagement, but changes her mind. Curtis' mother arranges a dinner in honor of Joan and invites her Aunt Evvie, who disgraces her with her manners. Joan sets the date for her wedding and as the time goes on Curtis becomes bored with the many dinners and parties and asks her to elope with him, but she refuses. Joan tells Curtis about her old love affair with Bill and wants to break their engagement. Curtis leaves town to try to forget her, but returns when he finds he still loves her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"JOAN!" he cried, "it's no use—"

They wheeled and looked at him in amazement, his mother and Joan. He whipped out his handkerchief and mopped his face. Heavens! He had almost shouted it. That was no way to do it . . . there must be no scene . . .

He laughed into their startled faces, "Now see what your old wedding decorations have done to me—given me stage fright. I tell you I'll never be able to get up the aisle—"

Joan's hand closed on his, comfortingly.

His mother's voice came sharply. "Don't interrupt, Curtis—we have so much to do! . . . Joan, I don't see how we can have more than 50 for the wedding breakfast. And yet—"

Quite suddenly he saw the way out. The plan formed itself, effortlessly, in his mind.

Joan felt sorry for Curtis, waiting, not very patiently in a corner. What a general his mother was, bossing everything, even Curtis.

"Let's walk home," she begged when at last Mrs. Barstow, flushed and important, decided that the few remaining details could be arranged without Joan.

"Do you know how far it is?" Curtis demanded.

"Oh, but it's such a perfect night—wouldn't it be fun to walk?"

"All right, if you want to," he agreed.

She slipped an arm through his, trying to keep from skipping.

"Curtis! Don't you want to kiss me?"

"What did you say, Joan?"

"What did I say? Oh, Curtis—you're a terrible lover—you don't listen at all. No, I won't tell you all over again. Besides I want to know what you were thinking about, so important that you don't even hear me—"

"Thinking about you, Joan—planning something I think you'll like."

"What? Tell me!"

"But I haven't it all planned yet," he objected. "Wait a day or two, then I'll tell you." He wanted time, time to think this all out. It must be done carefully, step by step, there must be no hitches, no mistakes.

"Oh, Curtis—please!"

"It's about the cabin. How would you like another house party?"

"I'd love it—"

"Yes, and it will be delightful up there now. I haven't been there in the spring since I was a kid. So when mother talked it up, or rather when I talked it up to her—well—I thought you'd like the idea," he finished rather lamely.

She took two or three little skipping steps because she was so happy. "I think she's awfully sweet to let us have a house party!"

He looked stern for a moment. "Now, Joan, don't go gabbing to mother about it, or we won't have it—"

"Why, Curtis? Why not?"

"Well, she doesn't care for the place, I told you that. I've been trying for three weeks to talk her into it, and I've got her about to the point where she's willing. Now if you spring it on her too, she's likely to balk—collusion as it were!" He laughed nervously. "Do you hear, Joan—if you want that party, keep quiet about it!"

"All right, but I don't think you're quite fair to her, Curtis. She's really working so hard to have our wedding wonderful."

"Does it mean so much to you, too—that wedding?" he asked quickly.

"Why no, Curtis. I wouldn't have had one at all if it were left to me—"

His fingers tightened on her elbow. "You mean—"

"I mean I'd rather have just a little wedding—just you and I and one or two we love, your mother, perhaps, and Maisie—I'd want Maisie—she's sort of a mother to me . . ."

"Oh, I don't know. Nothing. Sometimes the whole thing seems a mockery, all this marriage ceremony. I've seen so much of it. It isn't important—"

"You don't mean—" she asked huskily, "that you'd—rather not have the ceremony?"

"Well—when you see what it amounts to usually—"

"Curtis!" There was a sharp note of terror in her voice now. She stopped, and tried to search his face in the dim starlight. "Curtis, do you mean that because I—because of what I told you—that I'd live with you without being married to you! Oh Curtis—you don't think that—you can't believe that—"

"Don't be silly, Joan!"

"Silly!"

"Morbid—imagining a lot of rot. Listen, Joan—are you listening? Well then, I was just thinking out loud, thinking about all the futile marriages—I thought you'd understand. I thought I could say what I thought, and you'd understand me, without flying up in the air, and imagining—"

He stopped and kissed her, and his words ended in a moan, "I do love you—Joan—I do love you—so much—"

And they went on in the dark, thinking their silent, loving thoughts.

"I must be morbid, imagining he meant . . . that."

"She'll come around in time. She loves me. I'll make her see . . ."

The minutes melted away. They were almost at Maisie's door. She was lifting her head to say good night. A man was standing in the doorway. He slipped into the shadow as they came near.

"Why, Joan, you're trembling!" Curtis cried.

"It's nothing—that—that man—frightened me—"

"You are upset, Joan. It's nothing, just some honest citizen waiting for his girl friend. I got a good look at him under the light, he was no burglar."

"Yes—I am upset, nervous. So many things in one night. Curtis, please unlock the door for me—I'm too shaky—"

He did so, and gave her back the key. Good night, dear."

"Good night!"

Joan flung open the door, hurled herself into Maisie's arms, almost knocking her over.

"Well, for heaven's sake—Johnnie—what—"

"Oh, Maisie—outside—I saw Bill—I'm almost sure it was he. I looked—and he turned away. I know it was Bill—I'm sure of it—" She was gripping Maisie's fat arms so hard that it hurt. "What do you think he wanted? Why should he be coming back now—after—after that night he came here—"

"Now, now," Maisie soothed, "you don't even know it was him. He wouldn't come back—not him—now you stop imaginin' things. I declare I never saw such a girl for thinkin' the worst." She smiled, and pinched Joan's cheek. "Now you do think the worst always, don't you? And it never happens—does it?"

Curtis was so silent, so sunk in his secret thought. So apart from all the hilarity that bubbled around them, so brooding and quiet. It frightened Joan.

"Just don't pay any attention to him," his mother said. "All men get that way just before they're married."

There was no appealing to Mrs. Barstow for help. She saw no need for it. She forgot everything in the tremendous thrill of planning the wedding.

"If he isn't happy—" Joan thought desperately . . . If neither of them would be happy . . . if the whole thing were a cruel joke, and he didn't really want her either . . .

And then, when she had almost decided that he loathed the very pile of wedding invitations, waiting in their snug, rich envelopes to be addressed, when she was sure he had lost all interest in her, so absorbed was he in his own thoughts, then as if suddenly conscious of her he would seize her suddenly and passionately in his arms. Cover her face with burning, almost brutal kisses, until she would shrink from him fearfully, hating herself for her fears . . . "It is because I do not love him . . . Oh, Curtis! Curtis! Have I still cheated you?"

So she submitted to his caresses, endured his long, brooding silences, his unreasonable bursts of anger, his sharp, harsh words.

"I have made him suffer enough . . . I've done everything wrong . . . everything . . . spoilt my own life . . . now the least I can do is not spoil his—"

She realized more and more that even as she had loved Bill. She always would love him.

She looked down at Curtis's ring, and the great flawless stone blinked back at her, blankly.

Forbes

Monte Carlo Is Dwarfed; New President for Big R. R.

—By B. C. FORBES—

GUESSING what the stock market will do next is going on all over the country. The guessing is backed up day after day with purchases well exceeding half a billion dollars in the New York markets alone—which means, of course, that the sales also well exceeded half a billion dollars daily. Monte Carlo would not do as much business in its busiest season as is being done every day in America's stock markets.

Most of the guesses so far have been that stocks will continue to soar. Unquestionably there are a much greater number of buyers than sellers each day. But, equally unquestionably, the sellers are, on the average, men of much greater means.

The abnormal expansion lately in brokers' loans is interpreted as proving that wealthy investors have been selling their holdings on a large scale and that many of the purchasers are buying on margin, compelling brokers to borrow funds to carry the stocks.

MANY high-grade stock exchange firms are sending warnings to customers that speculation has become extremely risky and urging them to keep commitments down well within their means. In other words, margin buyers are cautioned to be prepared to meet additional heavy calls if such become necessary.

Since the Hoover election, speculation has raged in volume never before witnessed. But when you calmly examine the net results you discover that, notwithstanding all the sound and fury created by the bulls, quotations have had a habit of slipping back as well as forward. Not a few days have ended with net losses, not gains.

Don't imagine for a moment, however, that multi-millionaire bulls have given up trying to force prices higher and higher. That will be their program until they can turn their paper profits into cash—or conclude that such an operation isn't feasible.

Fireworks in a few stocks, including newly-trotted-out ones, will be logical to cover up unloading in other directions. Two of the stocks the bulls feel safe in using to bolster up the market are U. S. Steel and American Telephone and Telegraph. They figure that they would not be at all badly off were they left holding large blocks of these investment stocks.

Whether the bulls or the bears will have the greater occasion to celebrate the new year remains to be seen.

IN MAKING investments, give thought to the new era of railway electrification now opening.

THE Southern Pacific Railway is to have a new president on January 1. William Sproule has reached the retirement age. His place, I understand, will be taken by Paul Shoup, regarded throughout the West as one of the ablest business and financial men on the Pacific coast, and as being an equally able railway man. He has been the operating head of the road during recent years, after having risen from the ranks. Also, Mr. Shoup has handled all the Southern Pacific's vast oil properties, traction interests, etc.

Mr. Shoup believes that the only practical way to operate a railroad is to operate it on the spot, to stay on the job where the traffic is being moved. His headquarters will be in San Francisco, not New York. That other important end of the system will be in the extremely capable hands of Hale Holden.

I hear that one or two other changes among high-ups will be announced.

PRESIDENT-ELECT HOOVER is making an excellent start.

THAT business can be got by going after it has been impressively proved afresh by the National City Bank of New York. It held a world-wide contest among its employes for securing new savings accounts. In Cuba 38,540 were rounded up. South America yielded 22,170 new accounts. A New York City contest last year brought in 52,192 accounts.

GOOD oil stocks still look relatively cheap.

THE president of a large industrial corporation tells me that this will be the last year that the workers will not be paid during the seven-day or 10-day closing down of the plants at Christmas. He has reached the conclusion that factory workers are as much entitled to be paid for an annual vacation as are collar-and-cuff employes. It will cost the company several hundreds of thousands of dollars to adopt the plan which he proposes to put into operation next year. But, starting at New Year, he is to set aside a certain sum each month to take care of this new expense. Only, he does not look upon it exactly as an expense, but as an investment in goodwill-building, in loyalty-building and in humaneness.

To other employers: Have you given mature thought as to what it will be possible for you to do for your workers at Christmas?

STOCKS ROCKET IN FRENZIED MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Frenzied trading in stocks continued in today's brief session of the market, which assumed record-breaking proportions. The main price movement was still upward, but the advance lost some of its violence, and a number of issues fell back under an enormous volume of week-end profit taking. The ticker again fell hopelessly behind the market.

Price movements continued to bear little relation today to news developments, most of which, however, continued favorable. There was still a widespread divergence of opinion regarding the significance of the small increase in federal reserve brokers' loans this week, but many speculators continued to buy stocks heavily on the belief that it indicated heavy investment buying. Stock exchange member bank loans early next month will be awaited with unusual interest.

Radio was again a spectacular feature, opening 2½ points higher at 300, advancing to 301, breaking to 293 and then rallying to a new high record at 303. Montgomery-Ward also sold around the record high established yesterday. At least two score issues moved into new high ground, the list including Anaconda Copper, Bethlehem Steel, Packard Motors, North American Co. and National Bellas Hess.

Among the score or so issues to sell 3 to 5 points above yesterday's final quotations were May Department Stores, Sloss Sheffield Steel, Midland Steel Products preferred, General Railway Signal, American Telephone, Park & Tilford, International Telephone and American Steel Foundries.

Pullman, Sears Roebuck, Commonwealth Power, Greene Cananea Copper, Mexican Seaboard, Victor Talking Machine and National Supply all sold down 2 to nearly 5 points.

The closing was irregular. Total sales approximated 3,000,000 shares.

West. Airbrake Strong

Produce—Live Stock

CARNEGIE GOES AHEAD ON GOOD DEMAND HERE

A further upturn in Carnegie Metals and a strong market for the industrial specialties marked the trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange during the short week-end session today.

Buying of Carnegie stocked with [illegible] for the opening of business and to the close [illegible] end of the list here the stock had been pushed up more than a point from the initial quotations. There was no news to account for the flurry of buying of the stock was no better than the usual recognition of excellent management noted in the leaders in such industries on a large scale industry and the fact that the railroads and this Pittsburgh company's [illegible] strengthened by a accident which [illegible] pension of activities a few months ago. [illegible] signal business with Westinghouse Air Brake.

The steadily demand noted for Blaw Knox since the [illegible] one shares come on the board [illegible] middle of the week was [illegible] dent this morning and [illegible] taking all stock offered. Standard and the Arkansas issues were 45½. The Street has [illegible] disregarded.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

United States Greatest Silk Consumer.

The twenty-ninth mid-year report of the United States has retained its place as the world's greatest silk consumer and that raw silk [illegible] the chief import. Wound [illegible] 1927-1928 [illegible] placed at 103,185,000 pounds as compared with 97,711,000 in 1926. Raw Import [illegible] of the United States [illegible] were 75,850,721 pounds, having [illegible] invoice value [illegible] $4.87 per pound, or $[illegible] 861,426, against 73,458,000 pounds at $4.74 per pound [illegible] $348,000 more [illegible] 1926-1927. Imports and values [illegible] than double those of the 1911-1915 period. Japan again took first place [illegible] of supply with 52,761 bales, [illegible] 615 bales in 1926-1927. [illegible] China supplied the United States [illegible] against 36,617 bales the [illegible] and Canton shipments declined [illegible] bales from 8,251 bales, against 5,260 in 1926-1927, and [illegible] about one-third as much [illegible] were imported. Dollar value of [illegible] exports were: Japan, $[illegible] 570,270; China, $3,172,180; [illegible] 941; and other countries, $7,[illegible]

World's Largest Trust.

The New York Times says today that the largest investment trust in the world, which will be held [illegible] of its holdings at the outset, is being created here by representatives of the Fisher brothers, of Detroit. The capital will be $210,000,000. It is expected that eventually $1,000,000,000 [illegible] will be sold. Among those mentioned as interested with the Fisher brothers in the project is Arthur W. Cutten, of Chicago, one of the largest holders of wheat in the country. The idea for the trust originated after the Fisher brothers and associates had invested large amounts of surplus funds in various companies [illegible] Motor Company, an organization to hold these securities and considering the idea decided to expand the plan to allow some public participation.

Coty Earnings Higher.

Coty, Inc., reports net income for the first nine months of 1928 at $[illegible] after depreciation, federal taxes etc., equal to $9.23 a share on 327,762 no-par shares against $2,478,491, or $8.01 on 309,300 shares in the first nine months of 1927.

Tire Shipments Up 24.7 Per Cent.

September tire shipments by 70 per cent of the industry included 21,[illegible] over September, 1927, production was up 15.8 per cent, nine months' shipments up 15.8 per cent, and output 13.4 per cent. Rubber Association of America [illegible] production of pneumatic casings in all types in September totaled 5,101,187 against 3,616,390 a year ago. Production of inner tubes of all types amounted to 3,275,[illegible] 941; and other countries, $7,[illegible]

More Cotton Delivery Points.

Southern delivery limitation of interest in contracts and a control committee on deliveries were voted favorably by the New York Cotton Exchange. Those three changes in rules of the exchange are regarded as the most important and far-reaching steps ever taken by the exchange. Adoption of southern deliveries provides deliveries at seller's option at New York, Norfolk, Charleston, Galveston, Houston or New Orleans. The control committee has power to require members to report their position in any month it needs attempts to influence prices. Limitation of interest would prevent a corner in any option.

Trade Results Reassuring.

With nearly two months of the autumn passed, mercantile results have been reassuring and this year gives promise of ending satisfactorily, Bradstreet's Review says Dun's Review. A comparatively late development of importance is the revival in some textile branches. Broadstreet's report says. Despite irregularities due in turn to higher temperatures in most areas and seasonal slowing down in some important industries, the general situation of trade and industry seems, [illegible] to best reports of early fall.

Trans-Lux Plans Capital Change.

Stockholders of Trans-Lux Daylight Picture Screen meet November 30 to act on a proposed capital increase to 1,000,000 shares from 750,000 and on the proposed sale of 100,000 shares at $5 a share, to be offered stockholders in the ratio of one new share for every six held.

Southern Iron Advanced.

Blast furnace interests in the Birmingham, Ala., district have advanced the quotation on No. 2 foundry iron 25 cents to $16.50 Birmingham. Customers are urged to cover ahead as a further advance is held likely, says the Daily Metal Trade. Youngstown district makers of merchant steel bars, plates and shapes are planning an advance of $2 a ton above contract price on most shipments after tonnages Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company and Republic Iron and Steel Company divided the Texas Corporation order for 500 miles of 17-inch pipe line from Tulsa, Okla., to Lockport, Ill.

Heavy melting steel scrap No. 1 has declinde 25 cents a ton. Quotations are $17.00 to $17.50, Pittsburgh, according to Daily Metal Trade.

Potassium Tariff Increased.

President Coolidge increased the tariff yesterday on potassium permanganate from 4 cents to 6 cents a pound, effective December 16. Imports of potassium permanganate averaged during the five-year period from 1922 to 1926, 339,555 pounds annually. Germany is the chief competing country.

ByHesby Enters Mexico.

James J. O'Brien, president of H. M. Byllesby & Co., today announced the formation of a Mexican subsidiary to operate as a subsidiary for the acquisition of utility and industrial properties in Mexico.

Gasoline Cut in Boston.

Atlantic Refining and Gulf Refining have reduced the retail price of gasoline 2 cents a gallon in Boston, making the new price 18 cents. Jersey Manufacturing Company has cut the retail price 1 cent to 19 cents.

Week's Failures Increase.

Commercial failures last week numbered 344, against 336 in the preceding week and 312 in the corresponding 1927 week, R. G. Dun & Co. reports. Increases, however, are confined to the South Pacific coast.

Kolster in Big Deals.

Federal Telegraph Company, a subsidiary of Kolster Radio Corporation, and Mackay Radio & Telegraph, a New York American company, have closed two contracts of far-reaching importance, involving utilization of radio patents and sale of radio apparatus by Kolster. Under the terms of the agreements, which involve several hundred patents, patent applications and inventions in the companies in the radio, wired radio, electric phonograph, telephone and telegraph fields, [illegible] Bell Telephone Laboratories and this Mackay company [illegible] for the [illegible] North American Company during the past six years and their acquisition [illegible] Kolster Radio Corporation, [illegible] formed in Wall Street to be negotiating [illegible] for control of Kolster Radio Corporation. Kolster now supplies International Telephone with [illegible] and apparatus [illegible] Mackay [illegible] signed to be negotiating for acquisition of De Forest Radio Company.

Columbian Carbon Earnings.

Columbian Carbon Company and subsidiaries [illegible] for the nine months of 1928 [illegible] $2,105,851 after federal taxes, depreciation and depletion, equal to $5.23 a share on 402,131 no-par shares, against $1,011,991 in the first nine months of 1927.

Structural Orders Gain.

Structural steel orders in week ended November 13 showed a sharp increase over the preceding week, totaling about 54,800 tons, against 26,500. Fabricating awards were [illegible] 35,000 tons, which went to American Bridge Company, and 7,000 tons for A. M. Byers Company, plant at Harmony, Pa., which went to Fort Pitt Bridge Works.

Black and White Fridays.

About 28 years ago the New York Stock Exchange had its "black Friday" and yesterday it experienced a session that can well go down in history as a white Friday, for never before was witnessed such an outburst of confident buying of securities as happened in the early hours.

International Combustion.

With the idea of establishing one responsibility for all activities in America relating to the power plant business, International Combustion Engineering Corporation has organized the Combustion Corporation of America, to be a holding company for the following subsidiaries: Combustion Engineering Corporation; Coshocton Iron Company; Green Engineering Company; Raymond Bros. Impact Pulverizer Company; Heine Boiler Company of St. Louis; Heine Boiler Company of Phoenixville, Pa.; Hedges-Walsh-Weidner Company of Chattanooga, and Lasley Tube Boiler Company. The entire capital stock of Combustion Corporation is owned by International Combustion Engineering Corporation.

Week's Bond Offerings.

Although new bond offerings during the week fell off to around $57,000,000 from last week's total of $75,000,000 there were indications that next week's offerings will show an increase.

Record Bank Acceptances.

Dollar acceptances reported by American banks as outstanding on October 31, reaching a total of $1,122,716,889, [illegible] all records for the 15 years of acceptance financing in this country, the American Acceptance Council reports. The total, the largest of any month on record, represents a gain of $118,550,709 from the total of $1,004,166,180 reported September 29, and $147,580,065 more than the total of $975,166,824 reported on October 31, 1927.

Gigantic Combinations Forecast.

Wall street hears that plans are being formulated for two giant mergers which, if completed will result in two mammoth corporations with capital running into billions of dollars. Two power concerns are to figure in one merger and four steel companies are involved in the second. The first involves the Northeastern Power, the St. Regis Paper, listed [illegible] Improvement, Mohawk Hudson Power, Rochester Central Power and Buffalo, Niagara and eastern concerns valued at more than a billion and the steel merger is expected to result in combining the Steel Corporation, Lackawanna Steel, Central Alloy Steel Corporation and Republic Iron and Steel, valued at more than $250,000,000.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The cotton market opened steady at 5 points higher to 1 point lower and early in the day was [illegible] by December liquidation and southern selling. December declined to 19.51 and March to 19.16, but trade buying last week-end covering due to heavy rains in the belt, advertising the market [illegible] a steady undertone and prices hardened during the first half hour although the volume of business was not large. The advance was based on adjusted weather conditions at the end of the week was estimated at 202,598 bales against 122,594 last year. Private cables reported trade call for Continental and Bombay buying of scorching hedges, fair cloth sales to the continent and South America; yarns slow.

Futures closed steady, 3 points higher to 11 lower. December 19.54-57; January 19.45-47; March 19.47-48; May 19.38-39; July 19.22. Spot, quiet, middling, $19.70.

STEEL MELTED BY 'RADIO' IN NEW DEVICE

By GEORGE B. SNYDER.

THE Heppenstall Forge and Knife Company yesterday demonstrated a entirely new process for the production of high grade steel before Sidney and the American Society for Steel Treaters.

Perhaps on a grandiose scale, guns shooting into the sky, machine shops and hard manual labor usually come to mind when steel production is mentioned. But the electric furnace department of the Heppenstall Forge and Knife Company resembles a well-kept office. Instead of measuring materials in weight by the ton, they are weighed to the fraction of a pound.

The process for the melting of steel ingots in a high frequency electric induction furnace is said to be the only installation of this character in the United States. With the new process a person can place his hand on the box containing a charge of 600 pounds of molten metal at a temperature of approximately 3000 degrees without being burned.

NO ELECTRODES are used in the furnace. The high-frequency current from a motor generator set is passed through a helical copper coil which surrounds the crucible full of the charge of metal. Because of the electro magnetic currents set up, friction is developed throughout the charge and melting follows. This melting is accomplished without any electrical contact between the coil and the metal. Because of this phenomenon, induction melting has frequently been referred to as melting by "radio."

Extended experiments have been made which demonstrate that the steel made by the furnace is superior to ordinary crucible steel, which still is recognized as the best of former processes.

A charge of 600 pounds is melted and cast into ingot molds in about one hour. This is three times as fast as the old processes.

The Heppenstall Forge and Knife company is in the steel business but the highly specialized nature of its products places it in a class by itself. The utmost care is taken in making every ingot because of the exceptional uses to which it will be put.

MOST of the company's steel is produced in small acid open-hearth furnaces. The electric furnace process is used for the finest grades. The entire output is finished by forging.

Knives for giant shears used to cut steel billets are among the company's products. Practically the world is served with cutting tools.

The blocks for forging shops are one of the leading products. The need for steel to resist great shocks and intense heat makes the production of die blocks a high's skilled operation. After checking every step in its manufacture by analysis the steel is worked in huge presses until the desired size and structure is obtained.

Wheels for steam turbines are also produced in addition to forged shafts and other parts for heavy machinery which require the finest quality in steel.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

CURING THE COMPLEX

By EFFIE DELNORD

PHOEBE listened to Allen with an increasing sense of disappointment. She admired ambition in a man, but she wished he were clever enough to see that unless he curbed his aspirations or guided them in a different direction, he would lose her. That would mean, of course, that she would lose him and would not do at all, since Phoebe not only loved him but realized there was not another eligible man on her horizon. She did not count Sam Dewart, burly, prosperous and crafty because the very thought of him made Phoebe shudder just as she shuddered at the idea of leaving Mercerville.

Allen was glowing with plans. Phoebe liked him to glow, it made him look so daring and capable, but she did not want him to glow with schemes for leaving Mercerville. Not when she had just made the exclusive music club and had been for a year, really one of the much discussed bridge club.

"I haven't enough money, but this firm will stake me. Chance of my life, Phoebe, to have my own business, my own hardware store. Think of it! A new town, practically, with no hardware store in it. I'm going to put some pep in little Weetonga!"

Phoebe said faintly, "An odd name, isn't it? Sort of lonesome, out of the world. Makes me think of lots of sand and heat and bad water. You'll miss your friends here terribly." She looked at him hopefully.

Allen smiled, almost patronizingly. "I'll make new friends. That's just what I want, new friends, new ideas, new atmosphere! A chance to spread, to develop, to show what I really can do. Here's the opportunity that I've been dreaming about for years. Almost too good to be true, isn't it?"

"You'll find," Phoebe explained stubbornly, "that people are the same all over the world. The only thing is, when they've known you all your life they are more lenient with your faults and more dependable. We have such a nice crowd, Allen, and such good times. You'll miss your bowling club too. And think what it will mean to me—living in Weetonga!"

Allen frowned. "Do you want me to clerk in Sam Dewart's store all my life? Do you think I'm going to let this opportunity slip by on account of a few social connections here in Mercerville? Not on your life!"

Phoebe thought miserably, "He's frightfully selfish but it's this enthusiasm blinding him to everything else. Why, he's the very one who's crazy about our crowd! And we planned to give a series of dances next winter and I practically told Mr. Brill to save me that darling bungalow on Elm street. Weetonga's a dump and I won't go there but—" the appalling realization that Allen would go alone and the wedding day exactly six weeks from Monday might be a day spent in tears and regret, made Phoebe sit up very straight and think.

Allen still glowed. "This town will sit up and take notice when I spring the news on them. Allen Kirby going to have his own up-to-date hardware store in Weetonga!"

Phoebe thought, "Nobody will have the least idea where it is and what's more, won't care. The crowd will get some couple, probably those ambitious Linns to take our place, the music club will elect a fortunate one from the waiting list and the bridge club after endless controversy will ask one of the Pawn girls to take my place. In three months the ripple of Allen and his bride leaving town will be completely smoothed. I'll be in Weetonga reading Elsie's accounts of the wonderful times they are having and gritting my teeth, and trying to keep Allen in a good humor because he misses a little social life and in some dark way will blame me for it!"

"Honey-bunch," Allen drew her close, "I can't wait until we're married and settled up in Weetonga! Think of it, my own hardware store! Wait till I spring the news on our crowd—it's going to knock the breath out of 'em!" And Phoebe, with2 a2 tolerant smile, wondered if all men were so conceited.

That night when Phoebe lay examining the pattern of her bedroom ceiling paper for a long time, she decided that the situatin needed clever handling, and, curiously, she felt equal to it. She did not want Allen to be a hardware clerk all his life. It was quite proper for him to be ambitious; she liked him that way. Furthermore she was convinced that he was bright, capable and an excellent business man in his line. He was a valuable man to Sam Dewart. The thought of Sam made her shiver a little because she knew Sam was crazy about her. Phoebe reflected that Sam Dewart's wife might be tolerated in the bridge club, but he himself would never make the crowd that planned the series of dances. He went about with people one simply did not know.

As for Allen, everybody in Mercerville, particularly the right people, adored him. He came from a good family, but he suffered from some kind of a complex, Phoebe diagnosed, possibly because he was a hardware clerk, and what he really wanted was to impress the Mercerville folks. He wanted them to sit up and take notice of Allen Kirby. Phoebe smiled contentedly, closed her eyes and fell sound asleep.

The next day, when she was sure Allen was safely out of the store, Phoebe went in and bought a perculator, astonishing Sam with a sudden sweetness of disposition. Just as she was ready to depart she remarked casually, "Allen's a pretty good man, isn't he, Sam?"

"Sure" answered the store-owner indifferently.

"What I mean is," explained Phoebe, "you can depend upon him and he brings a good bit of trade your way. His uncle being superintendent of the paper mill and his best friend owning the table works. You'd miss him."

Sam Dewart shot her a questioning glance. "What's the idea, Phoebe?"

She came a little closer. "Oh, nothing. If you don't appreciate Allen, others do."

"You're going to marry him and that's enough to make me despise him," he told her in a low grumble; "you know I'm wild about you, Phoebe, and for your sake, I'll give him a raise, if that's what you're asking for."

Phoebe flushed. "Gracious, no!" she laughed at him. "It's this—in confidence, Sam—somebody's made Allen a wonderful offer to set him up in business in a town by the name of—well, it doesn't matter. I think he'll accept it and leave you on the first. I came down to warn you, Sam, as a friend. You can't afford to lose Allen. And what he really wants is a business of his own. Make him an offer of a partnership right here in this store."

Sam stared at her out of narrowed eyes. He rubbed his chin and smiled thoughtfully. "That's a splendid idea, Phoebe, splendid!" He patted her arm and she drew away. "I'll think it over. Thanks for the idea."

Phoebe went home, completely happy. The horrors of Weetonga were a thing of the past. She visioned Allen coming in that evening simply bursting with pride and good news. Allen, however, was late in coming, but Phoebe attributed it to the idea that he was springing the good news on his friends, basking in their congratulations and surprise. Naturally she was a little unprepared for a grim-lipped, red-faced Allen, simply boiling with rage, who finally strode into the house.

"Well," he announced vehemently, "somebody spilled the beans and Sam Dewart fired me without notice. He showed his colors, all right. Told me I was a detriment to his business, that what I knew about a hardware store he had forgotten, that I certainly had deceived somebody who was going to stake good money on a dumbbell like me! Said I was lucky the town was far away so this whole town wouldn't witness the bankruptcy proceedings, and not to come crawling back to him for a job when it was all over; I'll show him!"

Phoebe could not speak. Despair like the sand and heat and loneliness of Weetonga, now a positive place of her future, smothered her. She saw herself reading Elsie's letters, gritting her teeth, blaming herself, playing double solitaire with Allen evening after evening. What had she done, oh, what had she done! "Allen," she began piteously, but his violent embrace took all the breath out of her. "Honey-bunch," he was whispering, "I'll show him! I've enough friends in town to help me. It's all fixed. Rented a store in the next block and I'm going to put Sam Dewart out of business!"

Masters to Make Coal Yield Up Its Secrets

The second international bituminous coal conference will be held in the Carnegie Institute of Technology, beginning Monday. It will be attended by scientific men—chemists and engineers—from Europe and America, as well as leaders in the coal and other industries. They come to exchange ideas on the mining of coal and the disposition of the product after it has been wrenched from mother earth. As a great deal that was of value to the world was developed at the first conference of the kind, held here last year, the results of this year's meeting are expected to further eventually the use of bituminous coal and its by-products in the arts and industries.

The proceedings naturally will be of a technical nature, but they will tend to the betterment of society, since the lump of coal that you throw so carelessly into your furnace contains an amazing group of things other than power and heat. We know that it contains chemicals and all the colors of the rainbow, extracted from coal-tar, a by-product of the transformation of coal to coke. We have been told that it is a parallel to the pig, in which only the squeal is said to be lost when its life is sacrificed to the benefit of humanity. So the scientist is looking for a way to find use for the "squeal" of coal and other things he may have missed seeing in his research thus far.

Interest in the conference is widespread. Among representatives will be those of telephone company laboratories, tinplate, petroleum, chemical, explosive and other industries, as well as engineers, technical men and others of the coal and mining and power industries.

Your lump of coal will be polished and looked at on all sides as well as up and down; it will be ground into dust and relieved of its smoke and fumes; it will be baked and its liquid content extracted; it will be burned and the intensity of its heat will be measured in thermal units at least, figuratively if not actually. In short, it will be made to do its tricks by masters, not because they want to see its habitual ones, but because they wish to learn if they may be improved or if the humble lump of coal is capable of new performances.

Result in Safety Month Fine So Far—Keep It Up

Are you keeping in mind the fact that November is designated Thanksgiving-No-Accident-Month by the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council? Evidently many of us are, since it appears that accidents are being kept at a minimum, but how about YOU personally?

Success of such an effort depends upon the individual, first, and the mass of individuals co-operating to the end that lives may be saved and serious injury and damage to property averted. The Western Pennsylvania Safety Council can only suggest means by which success may crown the campaign for carefulness. It cannot be on hand to snatch you from danger into which your own disregard for your safety may place you. That depends upon each one of us keeping in mind "Be Careful," "Watch Your Step," "Cross Crossings Cautiously," "Look Up and Down Before You Cross the Street," the latter the slogan of The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Just Kids' Safety Club.

Thanksgiving-No-Accident-Month so far has been a success. The public, to a large extent, has been made "safety-conscious" through the spread of propaganda and lives have been saved—perhaps your own—as a result. If the public does not forget throughout the rest of the month, it is certain that a comparison of casualties with those of other months will show a wonderful record of how we saved ourselves from harm through the simple expedient of putting our minds to it.

Resolve now to be especially cautious.

A Contrast in Faces

Can Man Be Related to His Humble Animal Friends?

VISCOUNTESS CURZON AND "MR. GUPPY!"

This charming lady, married to a descendant of old Levi Leiter, who had the big department store in Chicago long ago, chooses to be photographed with her little dog, named "Mr. Guppy."

"Mr. Guppy" lives in great comfort, surrounded by footmen, maids, valets. No chicken is too tender for him.

And let the atheist consider this:

How could you possibly persuade "Mr. Guppy" that what he has in the way of luxury he owes to old Levi Leiter, who ran the store in Chicago half a century ago?

He would say: "I don't believe in any such person. I get everything that I have from this lovely Lady Curzon."

It is hard for men or dogs to realize whence come their blessings, especially if they are well fed, free from worry.

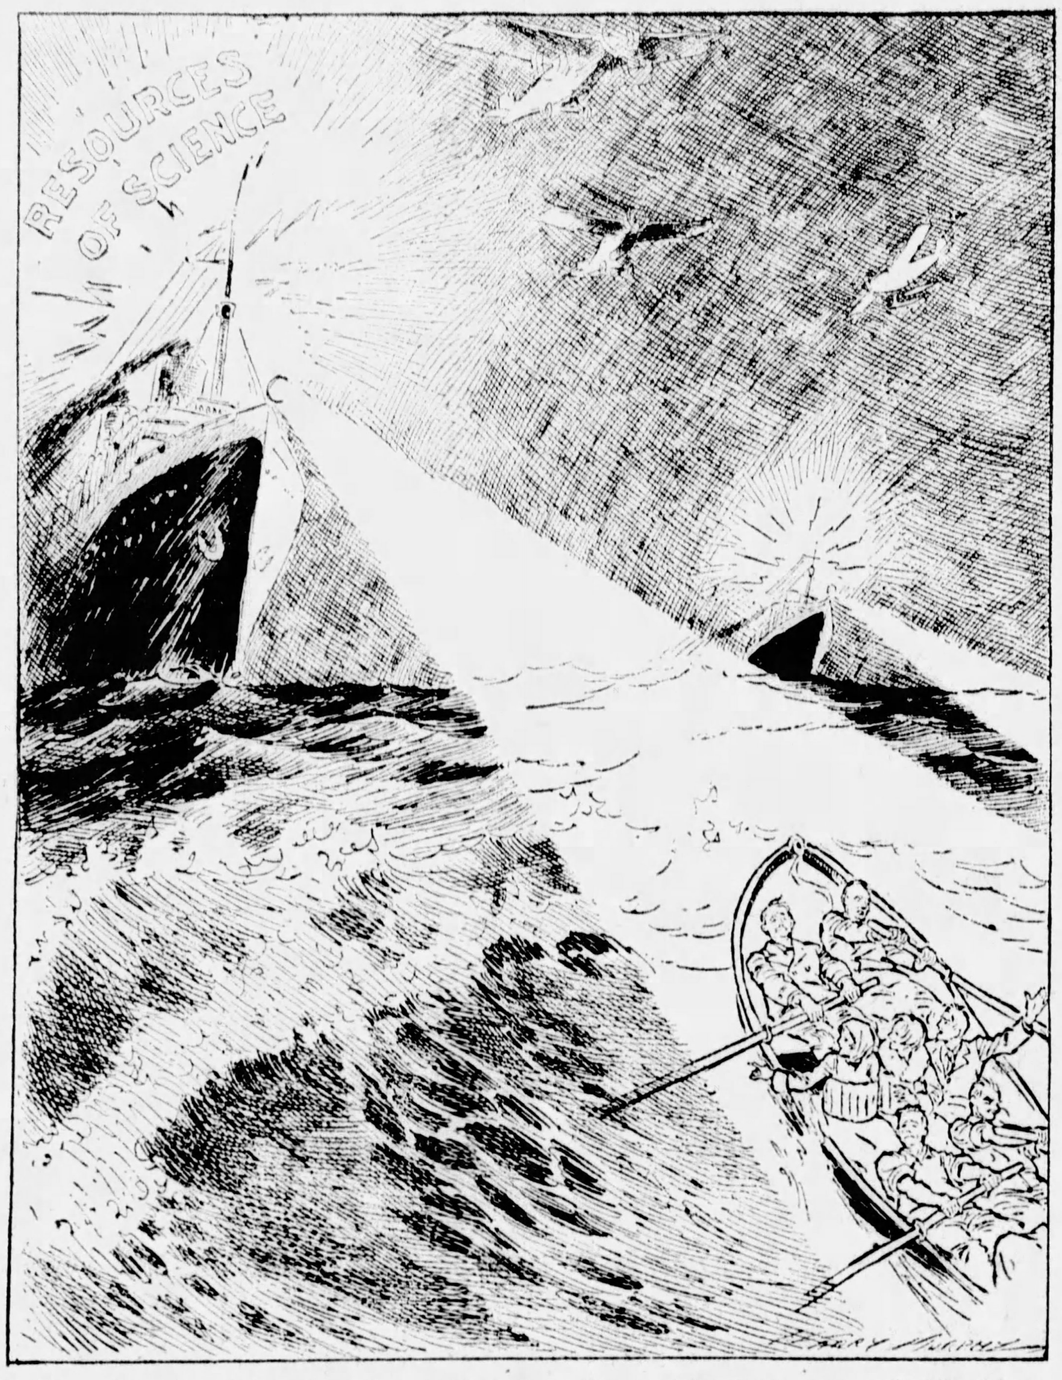
This picture is printed because it presents an interesting contrast in faces, both, according to scientists, "products of evolution."

The little dog came up, climbing the tree of evolution, from the original spark of life in the ocean.

And the lovely lady came up the same tree, but on a different branch, reaching a higher altitude.

It is hard for us to believe that there can be hardly any possible relationship between animals and men. But science says YES. And this little dog has a pleasant face.

TO THE RESCUE!



"SOS"—Three dots, three dashes, three dots—a simple combination, easiest to send, easiest to distinguish, and chosen for that reason, by international agreement.

When it leaps through the ether all else is hushed peremptorily, be it the President of the United States himself speaking through a national chain.

Ears strain for further news, and within the space of a few minutes help is on its way from perhaps a dozen directions.

Within the memory of men still young the shipwrecked could call for help only so far as a rocket could be seen by night or a flag by day.

Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war.

Tales That Are Told

An Amazing Theft

IT WAS just 12 o'clock, and the gang of road menders had laid aside their picks and shovels to enjoy the midday meal.

Presently one man remembered that he had left his pipe in the pocket of his jacket and went to get it.

While he was absent a practical joker substituted his can of rather strong tea for the other's milky supply.

Soon the victim of the joke returned and proceeded with his meal. He raised the tea-can to his lips, and then stopped still in astonishment.

"'Oly Moses!" he gasped. "I've 'eard o' clever thievin' in me time, but 'o'd believe anybody cud steal the milk out o' a bloke's tea?"

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

SO this here couple hadn't been married very long, and her husband was talking about what a great wife he had. He bragged all around town about her.

Well, one day she says, "Say, George, you say funny things about me. Now, Mary Kelly was telling me that you told her husband that you married me because I could sew so beautifully. Now, George, you know that I can't sew a stich."

"Yes, I know, my dear," he says, "but Kelly was wondering, and I had to give him some reason."

Remembered Hours

REMEMBERED hours, are scenes you bring
Life's sun-swept heights alone,
Where rarest charms their radiance fling
As old delights are known!

Is it of glad, triumphant things
You tell, remembered hours?
Always the upward sweep of wings,
The pageants and the powers?

Not so! Remembered hours you bear
Small, fleeting joys of old:
Gay frocks a baby used to wear,
A hill, dawn-drenched in gold.

Unbidden, sweet, they come again,
They breathe, they stir, they live,
These fragments fresh as April rain
Remembered hours give!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

THOSE old bathtubs in New Orleans make you stop and think and wonder what kind of a cream puff you are, anyway.

The bathtubs are in the museum now, but it isn't so long since they were in the homes being used by some of the leading hustlers of this nation. They are made of copper and there are several designs, but they all look like enlarged coal scuttles. You sat on the edge and wedged your bunions into the bottom while a Negro mammy poured the water over you with a teaspoon or maybe an eyedropper. If you got a quart of bath you were certainly in luck in those hardy days. Evidently bathing wasn't one of the lighter indoor sports in grandpa's time.

In fact, as you look over his equipment, you're moved to wonder if the old gent ever had anything that was light and easy. The bed he slept in with its rope-springs—the low, narrow bedroom, hot in summer, squeaking cold in winter—the meager tallow light—the coarse, hand-woven cloth that rasped his flesh—the monotonous food that had to sustain him between infrequent arduous trips to the city—the rare mail—the loneliness and isolation.

And this wasn't merely the lot of the impoverished ne'er-do-well. The finest in the land lived like that. The early Presidents of our country existed in a style which any enterprising, modern stevedore would spurn with scorn, and yet—how they and the country throve on it.

The marches they made, the battles they fought, the splendid dreams they dreamed on their rigid regimen and rough discipline.

It makes you humble to ramble around the country as I've been rambling for the last two months, looking up the traces of those men and women who built this big nation and left it to us when they passed on.

WE TALK SO MUCH ABOUT WHAT THEY DID.

WE'D BETTER DO A LITTLE THINKING ABOUT WHAT THEY DID WITHOUT.

We're great little doers ourselves—when we get all smoked up about something. But I wonder how much courage we have when it comes to enduring ordinary hardships and privations? How long would we stand those bathtubs and beds.

Our bathrooms are wonderful contrivances now, all doiled up like the sultan's delight. Colored tile and taffeta curtains and trick showers and rugs—BUT FOR ALL THAT QUEEN OF SHEBA SETTING, ARE THE SHIN BONES OF 1928 HANGING UP ANY BETTER RECORDS THAN THE SHIN BONES OF 1829?

THE AURORA VOICE

By Garrett P. Serviss

I AM glad to put in evidence the following additional testimony to the reality of the sounds sometimes heard with displays of the aurora borealis, which some describe as "musical:"

"Schenectady, N. Y., Sept. 18.—I had the good fortune to witness a very brilliant display of the aurora in November, 1917. I was wireless operator on the S. S. Doran and we were between Iceland and Greenland. The rustling sound that Mr. X. of Pittsburgh, writes of was very pronounced, being very much like the rustling and crackling of immense quantities of silk. The wireless receiver was useless, owing to static. We opened the antenna switch and caused two-inch electrical discharges to flow continually from the antenna, across this gap, to earth. The action was the same as a 'static storm.' The aurora itself was of many colors, ranging blue, reddish, green and yellow. They appeared to flow into each other from the top down, exactly like a little milk poured into a glass of water. A considerable portion of the sky, nearly overhead, was used. The night was clear and cold with the display terminating about 1:30.—The Wanderer."

This vivid description of the sounds accompanying the aurora recalls those that are sometimes heard when lightning strikes nearby. I was once, in the North Carolina mountains, involved in a thunderstorm when a bolt of lightning felled a dead tree across the road a hundred yards in advance of our auto. Coincidentally with the blinding flash began a swishing and cracking sound which lasted probably but the fraction of a second, yet long enough to be noticed. One felt "electrified"—though that may have been a terror of the flesh.

If there were any doubt of the electrical nature of the aurora it would be dissipated by such experiences as that described by my Schenectady correspondent, where we have in direct connection the well-known phenomenon of a magnetic storm induced by the electric display in the heavens, and atmospheric sounds which are characteristic accompaniments of all sufficiently intense electrical effects upon the wireless telephone on the ship to the "static" so familiar and troublesome to all "listeners-in" on the radio is significant with regard to the cause and origin of that distressful phenomenon.

That the ultimate source of these sounds should be 90,000,000 miles away, in the sun, seems at first glance a mere guess; but it is confirmed by the now unquestionable fact that the aurora is an accompaniment of solar disturbances.

Bible Passages

"My Soul Waiteth"

(Psalm 62.)

TRULY my soul waiteth upon God: fro[illegible]n cometh my salvation.

He only is my rock and my salvation; he is my defence; I shall not be greatly moved.

How long will ye imagine mischief against a man? ye shall be slain all of you: as a bowing wall shall ye be, and as a tottering fence.

They only consult to cast him down from his excellency: they delight in lies: they bless with their mouth, but they curse inwardly. Selah.

My soul, wait thou only upon God; for my expectation is from him.

He only is my rock and my salvation: he is my defence; I shall not be moved.

In God is my salvation and my glory: the rock of my strength, and my refuge, is in God.

Trust in him at all times; ye people, pour out your heart before him: God is a refuge for us. Selah.

Surely men of low degree are vanity, and men of high degree are a lie: to be laid in the balance, they are altogether lighter than vanity.

Trust not in oppression, and become not vain in robbery: if riches increase, set not your heart upon them.

God hath spoken once; twice have I heard this: that power belongeth unto God.

Also unto thee, O Lord, belongeth mercy: for thou renderest to every man according to his work.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The "arty" Bohemian vanished from London, Paris and Rome several years ago, but it was only recently his type disappeared in Greenwich Village. For years he was a dolorous figure in his velveteen coat, black Latin Quarter hat, sweeping bow tie and uncut hair.

He was a Byronic fraud—a poseur who discovered he could pick up free food and other necessaries by appearing in his Bohemian role. The war finished him in Europe but here he was really laughed out of his part by constant jeering of novelists, playwrights and newspaper paragraphers.

Ten years ago there were several hundred in the Village who knew no more about painting, literature, sculpting and such than the illustrious One Eye Connelly. They could spout a few artistic phrases and with this professional smattering worked the cafes, posing as exponents of the mutable fashions in art and literature.

They had gumption enough to talk very little and sat at tables in the coffee shops and waffle parlors, imbibing all drinks offered and giving a distinct impression of thwarted genius. They were mostly flip young clerks with the manners of a house detective.

In the colorful days of the section, cafe proprietors welcomed them. They were part of the atmospheric flap-poodle in the manner of the shoe-blacking splotchy picture. Visiting school teachers thrilled a little to their presence and timidly asked for autographs.

They were often accompanied by sandaled women in Grecian robes to suggest the exotic notion they were living in isolated sin. You were supposed to believe they drank mugs of absinthe straight and breakfasted on cocaine-on-toast.

Eventually the fakery became so monotonous that when a pseudo-Bohemian horned in on a party he was unceremoniously informed he was not wanted and if he stuck around he got a dandy paste in the eye. And gradually the ranks thinned out.

Even that arch-apostle of indigestion, Tiny Tim, who, with his tongue in his cheek, circulated around the Village toting his tray of "soul candy" found the racket was no longer paying. So he exchanged velvet coat and tam for overalls and a straw hat and is now raising pigs in Southern California.

Natty luggage is a boon to gentlemen who live by their so-called wits. A few weeks ago, one of them invested $300 in a smart traveling bag and before detectives tapped him on the shoulder and jerked a thumb toward the waiting wagon he had run up hotel bills aggregating $4,000.

RIGHT ANGLES

By Alexander Cairns

SUDDEN and sodden souls! Folks act either with an unpremeditated impulsiveness or they call themselves into executive session and after mature deliberation decide to do nothing, say nothing, be nothing.

Disrobe yourself of pretense and love will come like doves to your window. Filch the purity from the snowdrift and the candor from the rain and you will be as popular as hot soup with a frozen soldier.

People love the impulsive, the spontaneous character, the one whose every word is not a stratagem and whose every act is not a program of diplomacy.

This is the charm of the nonchalance of childhood. It comes like an unheralded shower from the sky, like the careless twitter of a wren, like the unblemished smile of a pansy.

Truth, beauty and goodness are unsophisticated. They never wear evening dress, nor talk little social nothings, nor serve the ambrosia of flattery, nor play wall flower at the functions of snobbery.

The world is full of regretting men and women who might have been Romeos and Juliets standing at the nuptial altar, but their real selves have been so veneered with social pretense that they are left stranded. No one wants to marry hypocrisy.

OH, THESE WOMEN

By Leola Allard

SPEAKING of the advent of fake jewelry for beauty's sake, a pretty little French girl in a smart new perfume shop on Fifty-ninth street, New York, showed the customer a lovely necklace. Strange to say, the perfume shop sells very little jewelry, too.

"It is lovely," said the customer.

"Yes," said the girl, "and it really doesn't turn your neck very black either."

He looked like a traveling salesman. You know the look. He had his girl at a lobster cafe for dinner, and he asked the waiter to bring in the live lobster so that he could be sure it was fresh.

The waiter brought the lobster, kicking vigorously. He probably pinched it just a little. (Where would one pinch a lobster?)

The girl wasn't impressed. She looked away. She also looked as if the sight of it just about spoiled her dinner.

You men can't make a hit with women, showing them vivacious, wriggling lobsters. Anyhow, you don't know that the waiter doesn't stop at another table and show that same lobster. The fact is, it may be a property lobster and not the one you get at all. Har, har!

But pessimists are folks who want to follow the fellow with the lobster into the kitchen.

It is really too bad, but when a silly girl or very foolish grown woman tries suicide to make some man feel bad, all she ever succeeds in doing is giving him a pain in the neck.

So she might as well live and have a lot of fun. He will.

Then if the girl recovers from the suicide attempt other men hear about it, and the whole sex decides that she is the one they don't want. The only thing to do about a man who can't love you is to decide that he isn't what you want. If he can make you that unhappy certainly he isn't. There are so many happy people in the world who would make your life a chocolate parfait with a brandied cherry on top. Snap out of it!

In San Francisco recently a girl who had evidently been rummaging through Chinatown appeared in a bushel basket full of Chinese jewelry. Her cocktail jacket, the latest thing this season, and her satin gown was trimmed with Chinese embroidery and had buckles made of Chinese coins.

Madame Sarojini Naidu, Ghandi's successor in India, says that American women remind her of beautiful birds flying about. Neither of the above mentioned girls could possibly have flown with their weight of silver and jade. They sat still and the men hovered.

In China men are being done away with as telephone operators because they were careless, impudent and refused to answer many calls.

In America any change would be an improvement. Maybe the men should handle our exchanges for a while.

Judge William N. Gemmill, of Chicago, suggested a long time ago that the ducking stool be brought back for nagging wives.

Recently a young girl in Jamaica ran away from home because she could not bear to hear her mother and father quarreling.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

DON'T shirk responsibility.

You have always dreaded to be held responsible, perhaps.

You would like to feel free.

You have always carried the impression that those who have responsibilities look so miserable and heavy all the time.

You don't want to look weighted with care.

You don't want to assume burdens, especially if it makes you so unlovely most of the time.

You think responsibility is a thankless task.

But there are many reasons for wanting to carry burdens.

Don't you want to be generally respected?

More important than all, don't you want to respect yourself?

How can you respect yourself when you let someone else bear the brunt of your deeds and misdeeds?

Stand on your own feet and hold up the other fellow if you can.

Be glad to stand for something important and discharge your trust with credit. Since you know how forbidding some faces are under responsibility, look cheerful and hopeful. Revel in responsibility!
